Ex-aide says sex reports on JFK 'lies'

BOSTON (AP) — Kenneth P. O'Donnell, chief of staff to the late President Kennedy, says news reports of Kennedy's sexual involvement with several woman are false.

Time magazine said this week that two women staffers, with Secret Service code names Fiddle and Faddle were given quarters near Kennedy on trips and were "assigned no discernible duties."

O'Donnell said the pair worked directly for Pierre Salinger, the president's press secretary, and performed routine press tasks.

O'Donnell said stories currently circulating about Kennedy's extramarital interests are all lies.

"But," he said, "there is no way to stop it. They will keep it going. I think there is a campaign on to give it to the Kennedys." He also said he thinks the prime target is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the late president's brother, but he did not elaborate.

Christmas: joy for most, but pain for many

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Christmas, a time of family get-togethers, scurrying searches for gifts for loved ones and other special joys, can bring holiday blues to those who are alone.

"Christmas is most frequently a holiday of happy childhood memories and family reunions. And when it isn't that anymore, for some people the day is very painful," says Dr. John Houck, medical director at the Institute of Living here.

"Christmas is the single holiday with the highest emotional investment. It's bad for some people because it's been mostly good at other times.

"It's probably worst for those who are alone or who have suffered a recent bereavement.

"More than any other day, we're surrounded by things to remind us of the holiday. All the ads tell us what a great day it is for everybody else."

Houck has some suggestions for coping with the seasonal depression. He says: keep busy, spend the day with another person who would otherwise be alone and take control of your Christmas activities.

"Many people are content to be alone," he said. "But if you're going to be alone and know you'll dread it, then plan something.

"And do something rather than nurse the fragile hope that some friend or relative will call at the last minute."

Some people can make their own holiday brighter by helping others who are less fortunate, he says.

"Invite someone who is also alone to join you for the day," he suggests.

"Or, if you're quite alone, the best treatment is probably to do something. Some people volunteer for hospital work. Keep busy so there's no time to consider how lonely you feel."

Youth uses phony bomb threat in $13,000 bank heist

Arrested two hours later on tip from former classmates

Amazed sheriff's detectives this morning were still talking about the 16-year-old youth who used a phony bomb and a scribbled note to rob a Bank of America branch in Industry of more than $13,000 Tuesday afternoon.

But the youth had the cash for only two hours before investigators traced him to his home in La Puente and arrested him. All the loot was recovered.

"This is amazing," Detective Lt. Bob Campbell of the Industry station said this morning. "Can you imagine a kid, who's never been in trouble before, being so sophisticated that he uses a fake bomb to take on a bank and get away with $13,000? He made more money in five minutes than a lot of people make in a year. How can you convince him that crime doesn't pay?"

The youth might have gotten away with it, except that he was spotted by a couple of former classmates as he ran from the bank at 13907 Amar Road. The witnesses, teen-agers too, were interviewed by Industry Detectives Ron Johnson and Ray Reed shortly after the robbery. They told the officers they recognized him as a former classmate at Bassett High School.

About two hours after the robbery, Johnson and Reed arrested the surprised boy in his home near the bank. They said he had used the time to count the loot, more than $13,000, and return it to the attache case he had used to carry it from the bank.

The teen-ager was booked on suspicion of robbery at the Industry station and later detained in Juvenile Hall. Meanwhile, FBI agents were brought into the case, as they are in bank robberies, and they referred the case to the U.S. Attorney's Office in Los Angeles. A decision was made there later not to prosecute the youth because of his age. As a result, he will be prosecuted under California statutes.

The robbery occurred shortly before 2:30 when a young man walked to a woman teller's window, shoved a note to her and opened a brief case to expose what appeared to be a bomb.

"It looked real," Campbell said. "It consisted of a couple of highway flares connected by wires to a battery. The teller thought it might be real, so she put the money in another case the boy brought."

Afterward, he sprinted from the bank, through a nearby school yard and to his home. It was en route home that his ex-classmates noticed him running with the two cases.

Shopper returns to find his home burned, looted

A Pomona man who went to Los Angeles Tuesday to do his Christmas shopping returned early today to find his home severely damaged by fire and articles, including his television set, stolen.

Pomona Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said that loss estimates to the home of Darrell Moore at 2213 Canterbury Ave. were $10,000 to the structure and $8,000 to contents.

An investigation is underway to determine cause of the fire and its origin, Fowlkes said.

Moore, who lived alone in the house, told firemen he had gone to Los Angeles to purchase a Christmas tree and gifts and returned to find himself burned out. The alarm came in at 3:01 a.m.

Record trade surplus for year assured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Increased exports of coal, autos and aircraft helped give the United States a foreign trade surplus of $1.1 billion in November and made it virtually certain that the nation will have a record trade surplus for the year, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said that for the first 11 months of 1975, U.S. exports have exceeded imports by $10.6 billion, which already eclipses the previous record annual trade surplus of $7.1 billion in 1964.

November exports were valued at $9,409,300,000, while imports totaled $8,299,100,000 on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Heavy security on U.S. diplomats in Athens after CIA agent slain

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greek police put extra guards today on all American diplomats in Athens following the assassination of a U.S. Embassy staff member identified by Washington sources as the chief CIA agent in Greece.

Security men were believed to be paying particular attention to six other Americans the same newspaper report said were CIA agents.

Police sources said extra protection also was being provided for 10 Russians accused by an anti-Communist Greek group of using the Soviet Embassy as a cover for espionage. Their names were made public in retaliation for the publication of the Americans' names and addresses.

Police sources said there were no clues to the identity of the killers of Richard W. Welch, a 46-year-old American career diplomat who was ambushed Tuesday night as he and his wife returned to their suburban home from a Christmas party given by U.S. Ambassador Jack B. Kubisch.

No attacks by Greeks on foreign officials have been reported in recent months, and there was speculation the assassins might be foreigners.

Mrs. Welch ran when the shooting started and was not hurt. After the killers drove away, she returned to her husband, who was lying on the sidewalk. He was taken to a nearby hospital and died shortly after.

The Embassy said Welch was a special assistant to Kubisch. Neither it nor CIA officials in Washington would confirm or deny the report less than a month ago in the English-language Athens News that he was in charge of the CIA in Greece.

The newspaper said six other Americans named Roland E. Estes, William S. Lofgren, James MacWilliams, John Palavich, Stephen Winsky and William Bright were using the Embassy and the joint U.S. military mission to Greece as a cover for their CIA activities.

After this report appeared, a group called the Committee to Keep Greece Greek issued the list of 10 alleged Soviet spies.

The Greek government expressed "deep sorrow" at the assassination and said "everything possible will be done to uncover the bloody murderers." Premier Constantine Caramanlis cabled condolences from the island of Corfu, where he was visiting, and sent two cabinet ministers to the Embassy to express regrets.

Argentine fighting kills 101; Peron govt. periled

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Eight hours of battles between leftist guerrillas and security forces on the outskirts of Buenos Aires Tuesday night and early today killed at least 101 persons, army sources said. The bloodshed further menaced the future of President Isabel Peron's shaky regime.

The dead included 85 guerrillas, 10 civilians and six soldiers and police, the sources said.

About 500 guerrillas attacked army and police posts, touching off pitched battles over a vast suburban zone 10 miles south of downtown Buenos Aires. Hundreds of army troops and police joined the fighting.

Security sources said the action apparently was a joint operation carried out by the leftwing Montoneros and People's Revolutionary Army — ERP — guerrilla organizations. The two are the most active guerrilla groups in Latin America.

Army chief Gen. Jorge Videla toured the battle zone early today, army sources said.

The fighting did not die down until shortly before dawn in the heavily populated area although an army communique said calm returned about midnight.

The guerrillas attacked an army arsenal and a regimental headquarters, occupied four police stations and gutted 15 municipal transport buses with gasoline bombs.

It was the biggest guerrilla attack since Oct. 5, when 40 persons were killed in a raid in northeast Argentina by Montoneros, the ultra-left Peronist guerrillas.

The fighting raised the death toll from political violence to more than 1,700 since Juan D. Peron's widow, Isabel, succeeded to the presidency at his death 18 months ago. The guerrilla attack came on the heels of a four-day revolt by air force officers demanding Mrs. Peron's resignation and a new demand from the left wing of the Peronist party that she quit.

The army said the hardest fighting and most of the casualties occurred at the arsenal, but other army sources said troops and police fought pitched battles to dislodge the guerrillas from the police stations.

The fighting at the arsenal spread into surrounding slum areas which the security forces have long believed to be a terrorist hideout. A police officer said snipers throughout the area fired on firemen and police trying to put out the fires started by the gasoline bombs.

Army officials said in addition to four army men and two policemen killed, at least 12 army men were wounded.

Navy sources said two helicopter gunships and two jet bombers flew over the area. They said the guerrillas opened fire on the helicopters, and the crews fired back.

For Yule holidays here

Ideal weather predicted

Christmas will not be white this year, but it will certainly be fair throughout the valley.

The weatherman predicts ideal weather for the entire weekend that will enable residents to enjoy holiday activities outdoors, as well as at home.

Many business and government offices and industrial plants will be closed Friday, providing a four-day weekend to their employes.

City Halls in San Dimas, Montclair, Claremont, Pomona, Chino, La Verne, Upland, Ontario and Walnut will be closed for the holidays. Skeleton crews will work until 5 p.m. today to give last-minute council candidates the opportunity to file their nomination papers within the deadline for spring 1976 elections.

Residents will gather at the church of their choice for special candlelight services tonight and Christmas Day worship services.

Normal mail service will be provided on Friday and Saturday. A holiday schedule will prevail on Christmas Day, as it will New Year's Day. There will be no window service or residential and commercial mail delivery Thursday or Jan. 1.

Special delivery service will continue both days and some post office lobbies will be open for access to box mail and stamp vending equipment.

Mail will be collected Christmas Day from mail boxes in Pomona designated with white stars, located in front of main post offices, stations and branches and from the self-service unit in the Indian Hill Village.

On New Year's Day, mail will be collected from local delivery boxes and star boxes as late in the day as possible.

In the cities of Claremont, San

Ford signs bill extending tax cuts until June

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Tax withholding rates will be held virtually steady through mid-1976 under legislation signed by President Ford.

Ford signed a compromise tax bill on Tuesday, extending 1975 tax cuts into the first six months of 1976. His signature on the bill ended a months-long battle with Congress over tax cuts vs. spending limits.

Ford originally vetoed the tax cut bill because it did not contain a limit on federal spending for fiscal 1977, which begins next October.

Move to block majority vote on state business tax falters

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The chances are apparently growing dim for a business-backed alternative to a June ballot measure which would make it easier for the legislature to raise business taxes.

Only about 400,000 of the needed 499,846 signatures have been collected for the business-backed measure so far, Dick Rosengarten, press aide to the Committee for a Two-Thirds Vote on Taxation, said Tuesday.

The deadline for the petition campaign is Friday. A sizable number of signatures from such campaigns are generally ruled invalid.

The initiative would require a two-thirds legislative vote to raise any taxes. Currently business tax increases need a two-thirds vote, but personal taxes can be raised by a simple majority.

The measure would be a rival to a proposed constitutional amendment placed on the June 8 ballot by the legislature which would lower the requirement to a majority vote for all taxes.

The two-thirds requirement has blocked numerous attempts to increase business taxes in California. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s list of goals in his inaugural address last January included an end to the requirement.

If both measures were approved by the voters, only the one with the higher vote would become law. A recent Field Poll showed an even split on the simple majority measure and a comfortable lead for the two-thirds measure.

"I just don't think they're (the signature) going to come in," Rosengarten said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. He added that backers of the measure haven't given up hope.

He said the campaign apparently foundered on the $125,000 spending limit for ballot measures under California's new political reform law, Prop. 9.

Backers of the initiative hope such spending limits will be ruled unconstitutional in federal or state court, Rosengarten said.

He also said the measure ran into "bickering" in the business community — an observation that was quickly disavowed by Milton Kramer, whose firm is running the initiative campaign.

"Businesses are as bureaucratic as government," Rosengarten said. "They're all doing their own thing, and they're terribly concerned about their image. They're scared to death of the press."

Rosengarten said major support came from Security Pacific Bank, the Ralphs and Von's market chains, the California Taxpayers Association, and several local chambers of commerce.

But he said several major utilities sat on their hands during the campaign.

And a provision of the initiative which would end the $23-million home office tax deduction for insurance companies drew opposition from large insurance firms, which refused to help gather signatures, he said.

A separate measure eliminating the home office deduction has been placed on the ballot by the legislature.

Vegas won't let him play, suit charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A California man has added two more Las Vegas casinos to those he accuses of barring him from their gaming tables because he "does not lose his money quite as fast as most people."

Kenneth S. Uston filed suits in federal court here Tuesday, seeking damages totaling $14.6 million from the MGM Grand Hotel and Airport Casino, Inc., known as the Marino Casino.

Uston contended in the suits that he has been prohibited from playing blackjack at the clubs "solely because, in their estimation, he was a competent gambler, known or believed by defendants to not lose his money quite as fast as most people patronizing defendants' casinos."

Uston has filed similar suits accusing the Hilton Flamingo Casino and Sands and Dunes Hotels of barring him from gambling in their establishments.

Good, friend ask to be free without bail

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two close friends of Lynette Fromme want to be freed without bail until they are tried on charges of conspiring to mail threatening letters to business and government leaders.

Sandra Good and Susan Murphy asked Tuesday to be released on their own recognizance pending the outcome of their trial.

U.S. District Court Judge Philip Wilkins scheduled a hearing today on their request.

The two women were indicted Monday by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to mail 171 letters containing threats of harm unless environmental demands were met.

They were being held on $50,000 bail each.

Miss Fromme, sentenced to life in prison for trying to kill President Ford, was named as an unindicted coconspirator by the grand jury. She is being held in San Diego awaiting assignment to a prison.

Miss Good, 31, was Miss Fromme's roommate until Miss Fromme was arrested. Both were early followers of Charles Manson, who is serving life in prison for the 1969 murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

Miss Murphy, 33, is a former nurse who has known the two women for about three years, an FBI spokesman said.

The indictment accuses the women of plotting over at least a three-month period to mail the letters.

It says that Miss Murphy and Miss Good gave the letters to a male friend on Sept. 5 — the same day Miss Fromme was arrested — and asked him to mail them.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Bruce Babcock said the friend, identified only as Michael Davies, turned the letters over to the FBI.

Babcock refused to say who the letters were addressed to, but he said the threats were similar to those voiced by Miss Good when she released a list of 70 business and government leaders Sept. 11.

She said those on the list would be marked for death by an "International People's Court of Retribution" unless they stopped polluting the earth.

Miss Good and Miss Murphy also asked at their arraignment hearing Tuesday to be allowed to defend themselves.

"I don't trust lawyers," Miss Good told Wilkins. "They lie repeately. I don't want any of that around me."

State raps energy need estimates

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The federal government is taking private utilities' word for the energy needs to be met by the Kaiparowits power plant in Southern Utah, California officials say.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management made "no independent forecasts of electric load growth" in an environmental impact statement on the project, California Resources Secretary Claire Dedrick said Tuesday.

"Instead, the utilities' forecasts were used" and they may be too high, said Mrs. Dedrick, a member of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s cabinet.

She said she was worried that high energy forecasts and power production may stimulate growth and aggravate smog in Southern California, which is to receive electricity from Kaiparowits.

County gives ultimatum to poverty unit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Amid increasing controversy, the Greater Los Angeles Community Action Agency has been ordered to solve its ethnic, racial and financial problems or fire its director.

The GLACAA annually disperses $31 million through 80 agencies to about 250,000 poor persons.

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday instructed GLACAA directors to immediately call its $40,000-a-year director, Ralph D. Fertig, into executive session to try to resolve the difficulties.

The directors can either eliminate the conflicts or fire Fertig, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said.

Fertig denied any mismanagement. He said Mrs. Ursula Gutierrez, board president, would convene the 15-member group as soon as possible, but probably not until after Christmas.

Harry L. Hufford, the county's chief administrative officer, said his special investigation division is looking into charges of friction, turmoil and possible violence within the GLACAA.

"There appears to be much distrust and a real potential for violence seems to be developing among dissident ethnic groups," Hufford told the supervisors.

"Critical decisions are not being made," Hufford said. "Staff morale is poor."

He said the agency lacks clear policy direction and strong administrative leadership.

GLACC overspent its $3.6 million administrative budget by more than $500,000 for the 18-month period ended June 30, Hufford said, and has spent $61,494 over budget since July 1.

The Head Start Policy Committe recently voted 25-3 for Fertig's removal. The Concerned Citizens for Community Action, which says it represents 35 poverty agencies, and the Concerned Black Employes of GLACC have also said "Fertig must go."

Get ready for computer gas stations—cash or credit card

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Atlantic Richfield's computer will fill up your gas tank for you, but don't expect it to wipe the windshield.

ARCO is operating five computerized gasoline stations in California and company officials say they plan to introduce more.

A primary advantage, the company says, is that do-it-yourself customers can be in and out of a computerized station in near pit stop time — just over three minutes, as compared to more than 10 minutes at a conventional station.

The new facilities are manned by a single attendant who monitors a computer hooked up to terminals that control six pumps on each of four islands. Each terminal has follow-the-number instructions telling the customer how to operate the system.

After the motorist inserts his credit card in the terminal, the computer checks to see if it's stolen. If it is, the machine won't give it back. If it isn't, the customer can fill his tank and get a printed receipt telling him how much gas he bought, what type it was, the price per gallon and the time and date of purchase.

Purchases can also be made by inserting dollar bills into a slot on the terminal. If a motorist puts in $5 but finds his tank full at the $4 level, the machine will print out a refund slip to be cashed in by the attendant.

Computerized pumps are the latest innovation in the selfservice gas station concept pioneered by two California oilmen in 1947.

Hugh Lacy, vice president of UCO Oil, recalled the first selfservice station, which he and company chairman Frank Urich built in Whittier:

"We came out with girls on roller skates and music and the girls skated around collecting the money and the customer pumped the gas. In those days the average station did about 10,000 gallons a month. When we came out with the self-service idea, we did about 500,000 gallons in the first month."

Since then a number of companies have introduced self-service facilities but ARCO's is the first to be fully computerized.

Dick Vinds, retail marketing director for Powerine Oil, a major independent, thinks selfservice stations will continue to grow.

"It's what the customers want," said Vind, estimating that "40 to 45 per cent of all gasoline sold will be through self-service facilities by the end of 1976."

John Elshere, past president of the Southern California Service Station Association, says self-service stations are increasing because they're cheaper.

"The consumer's pocketbook rules and where he can get the best buy is where he's going to go," Elshere said. "He'll save anywhere from two to five cents on self-serve in a major branded station and if he goes to an independent self-serve, he may save as much as six to eight cents."

Minimum term given in tax referee killing

Earlene Gooden, 22, convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting death of San Bernardino County tax referee Andrew J. Malahan, has been sentenced to a minimum state prison term by a San Bernardino Superior Court judge.

Judge Roy Chapman Monday, in keeping with a probation officer's recommendation, sentenced Miss Gooden under a penal code section that makes persons under 23 eligible for parole after the first six months and at six-month intervals afterwards.

Normally voluntary manslaughter carries a sentence of from one to 15 years in state prison. Miss Gooden was credited with 166 days of time served in county jail while she was going through her trial that ended on Nov. 19.

Technically, Miss Gooden could be up for parole in 15 days, but Judge Chapman and Miss Gooden's attorney agreed that it would take from 60 to 90 days of diagnostic testing before she was committed to a prison and that prisoners serving such terms normally spend several years in prison before they come up for a parole hearing.

Monday, during the sentencing hearing, Judge Chapman overturned a portion of the jury's verdict in the case that found it true that Miss Gooden used a firearm in the commission of Malahan's death. Judge Chapman explained that even though Miss Gooden did use a gun in the commission of the crime, the state legislature deemed that additional punishment for an armed allegation was not applicable in cases of voluntary manslaughter.

Trial evidence showed that Malahan, a tax referee and former West End educator, possibly despondent over the thought of losing his job, picked up Miss Gooden June 20 at a San Bernardino bar.

Testimony showed that Malahan took Miss Gooden to his apartment where later in the evening following an argument she shot him several times. Miss Gooden claimed that she shot Malahan in self-defense after he proposed a suicide pact with her. She said she managed to wrest the gun, owned by Malahan, away from him in a struggle.

Amtrak office moving to Garey in January

Amtrak's Pomona station at 156 W. Commercial St. will close for ticket sales, reservations and information Jan. 4.

Until then, it is open daily from 1 to 10 p.m. The telephone number is 622-2898.

Jacque J. Wilhelm, Southwest District superintendent, said the Sunset Limited will continue to stop there. Tickets, information and baggage checking will be available at Amtrak's station at 2701 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, after Jan. 4.

Amtrak reservations and information are available 24 hours a day through its central reservation bureau. The toll free number is 800 648-3850.

Amtrak is the last to vacate the old Southern Pacific building at the Commercial Street address.

Southern California Rapid Transit District, Greyhound, Los Angeles Airways and Railway Express already have relocated.

CHP Commissioner Glen Craig said Wednesday that Dodge Coronets will be used instead of Dodge Monacos.

Gift giving turned into aid fund

To celebrate the spirit of giving at Christmas, CUNA Mutual and CUMIS Insurance Societies eliminated their annual gift exchange and, instead, made cash donations to a Christmas fund.

Committee members investigated needs in the community and delivered their gifts this week.

A table-model weaving loom was delivered to the White Cane Center in Pomona. Operated by June Metcalf, the center is located in the basement of Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, 423 N. Main St.

The Montclair Guest Home, owned by David and Helen Reznick and managed by Geraldine Sails, received a portable stereo phonograph and records.

Through the Visiting Nurse Association of Pomona-West End, special hospital equipment was provided for two elderly people.

CUNA Mutual and CUMIS Insurance Societies are the credit unions' insurance carrier.

Man pleads guilty in Nazi killing after charge changed

Jerry K. Jones, alleged member of the American Nazi Party, changed his plea Tuesday in Pomona Superior Court to guilty after the charge against him was reduced from first- to second-degree murder.

Jones, 19, was accused of murder in the fatal shooting Aug. 15 of former Nazi Party member Joseph Tommasi outside party headquarters at 4375 Peck Road in El Monte. Tommasi was killed by a bullet fired into his face.

Jones claimed that Tommasi, who had had a falling out with the party after which he reportedly established the National Socialist Liberation Front, charged onto the property on Peck Road that day in such a manner as to cause Jones to act in self defense.

But at Jones' preliminary hearing, El Monte Municipal Court Judge Edward Nitsch denied a motion to dismiss the charge on the self defense claim and ordered Jones held for trial.

At Tuesday's hearing Commissioner Jess Whitehill accepted the guilty plea and ordered Jones back for probation hearing and sentencing Jan. 13. Jones is in custody in lieu of bail.

Pilgrimage to Bethlehem led by Israeli guards

BETHLEHEM, Occupied Jordan (AP) — The pageantry of Christmas unfurled in the Holy Land today with a dazzling procession to the Bethlehem cavern where tradition says Jesus was born.

The procession was led by trouble-scouting Israeli command cars. Troops mingled with pilgrims, always on the alert against possible Arab guerrilla attacks.

The Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Giacomo Giuseppe Beltritti, led the procession from Bethlehem's municipal Christmas tree to the 800-year-old Church of the Nativity, built above the marble-lined grotto revered as the manger of the Christ child.

Bells set out over the little hillside town accompanied an Arab fire brigade band in "Oh Come All Ye Faithful" in Manger Square. A crowd of about 2,000 — mostly Arab residents with a few foreign pilgrims — clustered in the square beneath a brilliant winter sun.

The procession was preceded by horsemen with spears. An escort with a silver-headed staff and a silver sword led the way to the church's tiny door.

Troops sealed off Bethlehem for 24 hours, admitting only tourists and pilgrims with official passes, and visitors entering the square were searched for hidden guns or bombs.

"No Arab would ever do anything to harm or disturb the festive spirit of Christmas," said the Arab mayor of Bethlehem, Elias Freij. "But experience has taught us that sometimes precautions are necessary."

Israel has maintained tight Christmas security at Bethlehem since taking the Jordanian town in the 1967 Mideast war. No trouble has occurred in Bethlehem, but last year a teen-aged American visitor lost her leg in a grenade attack on a bus near Jerusalem on Dec. 22.

The Greek Catholic patriarchate in Jerusalem said it was cancelling all Christmas celebrations except religious rituals because of the imprisonment of Patriarch Hilarion Capudji. Israel sentenced the Syrian-born archbishop to 12 years in jail last December on a conviction of smuggling guns and explosives for Arab terrorists.

Bethlehem's Arab leaders complain every year that security precautions dampen the Christmas spirit. But an Israeli official said, "If we didnt take all these precautions and something happened, God forbid, we would be blamed."

Manger Square — a parking lot for most of the year — was bright with streamers. The town Christmas tree glittered with tinsel and silver balls. A huge outdoor television screen was ready to show the climactic midnight Mass to those unable to get into the crowded church.

"This has more of the Christmas spirit than in America, where everything is buy, buy, buy," said Mrs. Joseph Datillo of Louisville, Ky. She was one of 19 employes a Louisville company sent to Bethlehem as their Christmas gift.

The town has lots of Christmas business.

Ford enjoys 'good' skiing

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford seems bent on being a one-man chamber of commerce for this weather-stricken mountain resort, proclaiming the skiing "excellent, great," although officially it's only fair to good.

Snowless for about a week, Vail may have to wait until next weekend — maybe longer — for enough snow to qualify for Ford's high rating.

The President's enthusiasm, expressed within hours of his arrival here Tuesday, probably reflected the fact that he'd been away from the slopes since his Vail holiday last Christmas.

Ford skied for nearly two hours over trails marred in spots by ice and by rocks poking through a sparse snow cover. Vail has had 64 inches of snow so far this year, about half the normal amount.

He launched his vacation by putting his signature on a number of pending bills, including the compromise tax measure that extends 1975 tax cuts into the first six months of 1976.

The President signed the tax cut measure and 18 other bills on Air Force One during the flight here from Andrews Air Force Base. Stepping off the plane, he declared, "It's too nice a day to stay inside," and he headed for the ski slopes.

Most of the time the President is here he will be relaxing, but there are 19 more bills awaiting his signature and he will also work on his State of the Union address.

The entire Ford family is here and went to a local hotel Tuesday night for a fondue dinner with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brown of Logan, Utah, and their five children.

Ford plans to return to the White House on Dec. 30. He usually stays about two weeks.

The President's first outing on skis produced a near-mishap. Paying heed to well-wishers gathered near him at a chair lift, he did not see an empty chair swinging into position behind him. The chair grazed his back as he was pulled aside by Secret Service Agent Larry Buendorf, the same bodyguard who deflected the gun aimed at Ford by Lynette Fromme in Sacramento, Calif., last September.

On leaving the White House Tuesday morning, Ford had gotten entangled in the leashes of two family dogs that circled friskily around him.

In signing the tax cut bill, Ford averted a Jan. 1 tax increase. The 1975 tax cuts extended by the bill would have expired Dec. 31.

Also signed was a measure that will lead to a national women's conference next year to assess the status of women in American society, and another aimed at promoting use of the metric system.

In a statement on the metric bill, Ford complained that the United States is "an island in a metric sea" but emphasized conversion to the metric system "is to be a completely voluntary one."

Other bills he signed would finance the Interior Department until Sept. 30, permit larger federally-insured loans to mobile home buyers and give the national wiretap commission until April 30 to complete a study of laws regulating electronic eavesdropping.

Metric system to be pushed in U.S.

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — The United States will begin a national program to increase use of the metric system of measurement, which is used by almost all other countries.

President Ford signed the Metric Conversion Act on Tuesday, saying that continued use of the English system of measurement is making the United States "an island in a metric sea."

Ford noted in a statement that presidents as far back as George Washington had called for a worldwide uniform system of weights and measures.

"In 1965, Great Britain renounced its old system of measurement in favor of metric," the President said. "Today, more than 90 per cent of the world's people use metric measurements in their everyday lives."

Ford said that several years ago the National Bureau of Standards conducted a study and urged wider use of metric measurements.

He said the bureau proposed a coordinated national program to bring this about and "the legislation before us today implements that finding.

"It is important to stress that the conversion contemplated in this legislation is to be a completely voluntary one."

Ford added that the government's function, through a U.S. Metric Board which he will appoint, will be to coordinate increasing use of the metric system in various sectors of the economy.

The President said the real impetus for the bill has come from those in the business of buying and selling American products here and overseas.

"U.S. industry, in this regard, is miles ahead of official policy," he added. "Many areas of our industry — such as pharmaceuticals, cameras and space exploration — already are entirely or largely metric."

Officer's compassion saves 18-year-old youth from jail

MCKEESPORT, Pa. (AP) — He's still recovering from a skull fracture this holiday season, but policeman William Rendulic doesn't regret making the leniency appeal that helped keep his young assailant out of jail.

"I still get my headaches now and then, but I know prison wouldn't do that boy any good," the 38-year-old Rendulic said this week.

"I know what happens when you put an 18-year-old boy in prison," he said. "I feel I've done the right thing for the kid, and I hope it works out for him."

Rendulic has been on disability leave since the night last summer when police arrested a dozen youths in a fistswinging melee at a street fair in this Pittsburgh suburb. He hopes to return to work after the first of the year.

Rendulic, a 12-year police veteran, was struggling with Aaron Gaska, the 18-year-old who he ultimately aided in court. "I had him in a headlock. Then he tripped me and the light's went out," he said. Rendulic spent 13 days in the hospital.

The youth was charged with a felony — aggravated assault on a police officer. It could have carried a penalty of 5-to-10 years in prison.

Gaska sat and sobbed this month in Allegheny County Court after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of simple assault. Judge Joseph Ridge sentenced him to five years probation.

"The policeman's action certainly does show a feeling of forgiveness, and that certainly seems in the Christmas spirit," the judge said Tuesday, adding it was a factor in his decision to grant probation.

"I really appreciated what he did, and I thanked him a lot," said Gaska, who spoke hesitantly when contacted by phone at his home. "I was told to watch myself, and that's what I'm doing."

Men raid lingerie departments today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On Christmas Eve, husbands in search of gifts turn the noman's land of lingerie departments into every man's land.

"We close at 6 Christmas Eve, and at 5:30 the lingerie aisles will be cluttered with men," said Catherine Drummond, a merchandise manager at Gimbels.

Old standbys such as sexy negligees and flowing, flimsy robes become lifesavers for last-minute male shoppers, said Annette DiSommartino, manager of John Wanamaker's lingerie department.

"The men who usually come in are not at all ashamed. One man said, 'I want something really obscene,'" Mrs. DiSommartino said. "He got what he wanted, and let me tell you, it never came back for an exchange."

"We all know that Christmastime is when sexy, luxurious lingerie sells. It's there for one reason — to be picked up by men," said Harriet Ford, fashion director at Vassarette in New York City.

MIAMI (AP) — "It's the greatest Christmas present anyone could ever get," says a young man whose Yuletide reunion with a faithful girlfriend was guaranteed when a judge released him from prison.

U.S. District Court Judge Peter Fay, in the role of Santa Claus, dropped a four-year sentence against Larry Wells, convicted in April 1974 for selling drugs and sent to federal prison in Tallahassee. Wells, 24, was placed on probation Tuesday.

"I never expected that I would be freed," Wells said after the hearing on Tuesday. "I thought I might get some reduction in my sentence and that the felony mark against me might be erased — but nothing like this."

Dimas, Montclair, Pomona, Chino, La Verne, Ontario and Walnut, refuse and trash collections will be delayed one day for both Christmas and New Year's. Thursday's collections will be made on Friday and Friday's collections will be picked up Saturday. In the City of Upland, Thursday's trash will be collected Friday while Friday's will be picked up Monday.

All county offices are closed for both holidays, but will be open on Dec. 26 and Jan. 2. For the holidays, only emergency police and fire protection services will be available.

Area schools and colleges are closed for students and faculty for the holiday recess. Classes will begin again for most on Jan. 5.

All available California highway patrolmen will be on duty during the holiday season to provide maximum traffic safety. The drinking driver will be the No. 1 priority, according to Captain Eriks M. Svede, commander of the CHP office in Ontario.

The patrol's thrust, said Svede, will be on accident prevention, rather than penalizing fringe violators.

"Very special emphasis," Svede declared, "will be placed on arresting every drunk driver, with the standing order of find them, arrest them and jail them."

China trip aided Ford in polls

NEW YORK (AP) — Pollster Louis Harris says the difference between his survey results on President Ford's popularity and those of a poll taken by the George Gallup organization may be due to the President's China trip.

Officials of both polling organizations were amazed to find Harris' latest survey giving Democratic Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota a commanding lead over Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, while a Gallup poll made public Monday reversed the picture, showing Ford and Reagan leading Humphrey.

Both Harris and Gallup official Jim Shriver noted that the Harris poll, released Friday, was completed before the President went to China, while Gallup's was taken after his return.

"If Gallup is right," said Harris, "Ford did get a major gain from the China trip. How long it will last is the question.

"It is the widest difference we've ever had.

"It's possible we'll find him a very volatile candidate. We may find him going up and down during the campaign."

Harris added that his poll produced "very solid evidence that he's (Ford) in deep trouble in the economic ratings."

The Harris poll, taken Nov. 24 to Dec. 1 with a sample of 950 "likely voters," showed Humphrey ahead of Ford by 52 to 41 per cent and leading Reagan by 50 to 43 per cent.

The Gallup poll was conducted for four days beginning Dec. 5 and surveyed 1,078 registered voters. It gave Ford a 51 to 39 per cent lead over Humphrey and Reagan a 50 to 42 per cent over the senator.

Wool pull

The expression "to pull the wool over one's eyes" comes from the time when gentlemen wore white wigs, usually made of wool. Highwaymen would pull a victim's wig down over his eyes before relieving him of watch and wallet.

Lesbian loses court suit to keep her son

DALLAS (AP) — "I'm happy to have him back," said Douglas Risher shortly after a domestic court jury decided his 9-year-old son should live with him and not his homosexual mother.

Mary Jo Risher, 38, an admitted Lesbian, broke into tears and cried on the shoulder of her lawyer after the decision was announced Tuesday. She later was escorted into the vacant jury room, stayed there for about 45 minutes, returned to the courtroom but refused comment on the ruling. Her lawyer said an appeal would be filed.

The jury of 10 men and two women deliberated some five hours over a two-day period before returning the verdict.

Risher sought custody of his son, Richard, who had lived with his mother since the couple divorced in 1971. Risher said in the lawsuit that after the divorce his former wife began a homosexual life-style not conducive to the proper upbringing of their son.

Mrs. Risher testified during the trial she was living with Ann Foreman, 30, another homosexual, and that she loved her "more than anything in the world, but that doesn't mean I don't love Richard and Jimmy, too."

Jimmy, the couple's 17-year-old son, moved to his father's home recently, saying he was embarrassed when he found out about his mother's sexual preferences.

Young Richard was not present during the trial.

$20,000 a year

Two Superman creators paid

NEWYORK (AP) — The two men who created the mythical Superman 42 years ago and sold the rights for $130 will be paid $20,000 a year for the rest of their lives by the current owners of the man of steel.

Warner Communications, Inc., which had no legal obligation to pay Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster, both 61, agreed Tuesday to make the payments.

Siegel is blind in one eye and lives in a New York City apartment; Shuster makes $7,000 a year as a mail clerk in Los Angeles.

"We are no longer young and unfortunately, not indestructible as our creation," they said Tuesday. "But our spirit is undiminished.... For us this year will be a very happy new year."

Siegel and Shuster signed away all rights to Superman in 1938. As a result, they have received no royalties over the years, while National Periodical Publications, Inc., a Warner subsidiary, has continued to make money from Superman — $3 million from one recent movie alone.

Although both men encountered hard times, until recently they kept silent while complicated litigation over Superman rights was in the courts.

Warner opened with an offer of $10,000 a year for life, and Siegel and Shuster termed the final agreement "fair and generous."

"After more than 30 years we are overjoyed at being reunited with Superman," said the two men, who continued to draw their hero until 1948. "We have always been proud of our creation."

Snow warning

By The Associated Press

Heavy snow warnings were in effect this morning for mountain areas in south-central New Mexico, southwestern Texas and southwestern, central and northeastern Oklahoma.

The storm system had left a cover of snow over portions of the southern plains of Texas. Driving was hazardous in the Guadalupe Pass region by early last evening with up to six inches of new snow on the highways.

Fannin won't seek office

Kidnaps latest in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Mass kidnapings touched off street battles today in and around Beirut, diminishing prospects for a Christmas break in Lebanon's civil war.

"Kidnap supermarkets are in almost every Beirut street," cried state radio announcer Sharrif Akhawi. "All people should stay indoors."

Akhawi, who has come to be known as "The Voice of the Crisis" in Lebanon, said police recorded more than 100 gunpoint abductions as Moslem and Christian fighters set up "flying" roadblocks.

In one such operation a Moslem group established a roadblock in the Rauche seaside residential area. While one gunman with a rocket launcher on his shoulder stood guard, his comrades, armed with assault rifles, stopped cars and demanded identity cards. One driver was pulled from his car and taken away before a security patrol made up of an armored personnel carrier and jeeps arrived on the scene.

In the Hamra shopping district, once one of Beirut's major tourist attractions, tough Palestine guerrillas of the Syrian-backed Saika group were seen charging kidnapers' roadblocks and slamming the gunmen with their weapons to stop the abductions.

Palestine guerrilla police from the moderate groups have been cooperating with Lebanese police in an effort to calm down the Lebanese fighting.

The new wave of kidnapings in the capital followed gunbattles around Prime Minister Rashid Karami's house in Tripoli, 60 miles north of Beirut, and new fighting in eastern Lebanon.

Finally gets purple heart

ETOWAH, Tenn. (AP) — After 57 years, World War I veteran W.A. "Rat" Carlock finally has his purple heart.

"It took a good while coming," said Carlock, 79, who was wounded Oct. 7, 1918, in Germany.

The belated medal came about after his case was publicized in a newspaper interview. Carlock said he had been wounded in the engagement but never received the purple heart.

After receiving the medal by registered mail, Carlock recalled the three-day battle to break the Hindenburg Line.

"We had them on the run from then on and were driving the Germans back into their own ground" he said. "It was on Oct. 7 that I received wounds from what I believe was machine gun fire. I was taken to a field hospital for three days and then shipped out to England."

After he came home he received a $60 bonus and said he thought it was "a lot of money ... I was rich."

Anderson gets furlough

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy complained to a federal judge Tuesday that his mail is being improperly opened at the Danbury federal penitentiary.

Liddy, who was counsel to the Committee to Reelect the President when Richard Nixon was seeking re-election, is serving a 6½-20 year sentence at Danbury for conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. It was the stiffest sentence given any of the Watergate defendants.

Liddy, who represented himself before U.S. District Judge Jon O. Newman, complained that officials of the Danbury prison opened more than 250 letters of privileged mail addressed to various inmates when the inmates weren't present, a court spokesman said. Newman reserved decision on the complaint.

Federal prison rules state that privileged mail must be opened in the presence of inmates. That includes letters marked "attorney-client" or mail that clearly comes from a court or federal legislator, a court source said.

A prison spokesman said Danbury officials process up to 3,000 letters daily and occasionally a privileged communication might slip into the pile.

Liddy says mail opened

ALLENWOOD, Pa. (AP) — Dale Anderson, the former Baltimore County executive convicted of corruption charges, has begun a five-day Christmas furlough from the Allenwood Federal Prison Camp.

L.E. Jensen, camp superintendent, said the 59-year-old Anderson was given the brief respite Tuesday from his five-year term because "we think he can handle the responsibility and be respectful to the people he meets." Anderson followed Spiro T. Agnew as county executive.

Algeria asylum for terrorists?

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algeria's leftist government may give asylum to the terrorists who killed three men, including a Libyan government official, at an oil cartel meeting in Vienna, informed sources say.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika, who negotiated with the terrorists after their flight to Algiers, discussed the possibility of a pardon in return for the release unharmed of the 41 hostages they brought with them, the sources said.

The Algerian government has condemned airplane hijacking and expelled hijackers whose motives it considered criminal. But Bouteflika told newsmen the Vienna terrorists' goal was a political one.

The Austrian government said it would ask Algeria to extradite the five men and one woman who invaded an oil ministers meeting Sunday at the headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

After killing an Austrian policeman, the Libyan and an Iraqi security guard, the terrorists took 10 oil ministers and more than 9 other OPEC personnel hostage. After a 20-hour siege, the terrorists brought the ministers and 31 other hostages to Algiers and released them in the Algerian capital and Tripoli, Libya, before surrendering early Tuesday to Algerian authorities.

CUSTODY FIGHT — Mary Jo Risher, left, 38, an admitted homosexual, who lives with Ann Foreman, 30, right, another homosexual, is seeking continued custody of her 9-year-old son. The custody suit was brought in Dallas by Douglas Risher against his ex-wife, who he claims began a homosexual lifestyle not conducive to the proper upbringing of their son.

Staff aide disputes link of JFK, mystery woman

BOSTON (AP) — Kenneth P. O'Donnell, chief of President John F. Kennedy's White House staff and Kennedy's appointments secretary, disputes claims by a California woman that she had at least 70 telephone conversations with Kennedy and lunched with him 20 times at the White House.

"Even Jacqueline Kennedy didn't have lunch 20 times with the President in the White House," O'Donnell said.

"As for the phone calls, that's a different matter, but just as ridiculous. Some gal in California would call Evelyn Lincoln (Kennedy's secretary) and ask to speak to the President. Evelyn Lincoln, a nice lady, would take a call from anybody," O'Donnell said. "But that doesn't mean the caller actually spoke to the President."

At a news conference last week, Judith Campbell Exner, who was called before a Senate committee investigating possible CIA assassination attempts, said she once had a close personal relationship with Kennedy, and also maintained close relationships with two Mafia figures.

Mrs. Exner also said "O'Donnell was fully aware of my relationship with the President."

"I never met the woman," O'Donnell said in an interview published today in the Boston Herald American, "and I never talked with her. I had forgotten about her until I was asked several weeks ago by Sen. Frank Church's Senate Intelligence Committee who she was."

O'Donnell said the woman could have been a Kennedy campaign worker.

"What happened," O'Donnell said, "is the attempt to bridge the Chicago underworld connection with a Castro assassination plot involving Judith Campbell Exner blew up in the committee's face. The committee itself has since dropped it."

O'Donnell said, "No one outside of Bobby Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon Johnson had access to the President's office without first getting clearance from me. Every morning I would get a list of phone calls he had received the night before. I never heard of this woman who now insinuates she had been his mistress.

"She admits she is going to write a book," O'Donnell said. "That's what this is all about. In a way, its similar to Fanne Foxe and Wilbur Mills. But they were caught and pictures were taken. The President and this girl were never caught because, in my opinion, there was nothing to catch. And there certainly were no pictures."

"It's just a sex story now," O'Donnell said, "and not a very good one at that."

L.A. on move to the north

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Los Angeles residents who have little use for San Francisco had better hold their tongues. In a measly 10 million years, the two California cities may be neighbors.

Robert S. Dietz, a visiting geology professor at Washington State University, says the North American continent is moving westward at a rate of an inch a year and the Pacific plate is shifting northwest about three times that fast.

Using a compass and applying a little basic math, Dietz figures that Los Angeles will move up the Pacific slope to a point opposite San Francisco in about 10 million years, and into the Aleutian trench in about another 50 million years.

"By geological standards, that's fast," says Dietz, a marine geologist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

He makes his prediction based on new scientific information related to "transform faults," and dynamic changes taking place on and under the earth's surface.

The San Andreas fault, which runs the length of the state of California, is a "transform fault," Dietz says.

"The San Andreas either creeps or jumps six meters every 100 years," he said. That movement, combined with the continental drift, is what is taking the Los Angeles area northward toward its ultimate plunge, he said.

Transform faults are fractures in the earth's crust along which segments of the earth's crust shear past one another. This is usually accompanied by earthquakes.

"With the handle this information has provided, we should be able to predict earthquakes accurately in the near future. I'd say within a decade," Dietz said.

Dietz, 61, was awarded the prestigious Walter S. Bucher Medal in 1971 for "original contributions to the knowledge of the earth's crust." The author and professional deep sea diver went to Antarctica as chief oceanographer with Admiral Richard E. Byrd on "Operation High Jump," the famed explorer's final expedition.

He also is an adjunct professor of Rosensteil School of Marine and Atmospheric Science at the University of Miami.

Demand spurred by malpractice costs

U.S. doctors want jobs abroad

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A medical job placement agency says it is being "flooded with inquiries from U.S. doctors seeking assignments overseas to escape skyrocketing malpractice insurance costs.

The agency, Option, is conducting an advertising campaign which a spokesman says has produced inquiries from virtually every section of the United States.

In recent weeks Option has been "flooded with inquiries," said spokesman Steve Conlan in an interview adding that there were 230 responses last week alone — more than during a normal six-month period.

He said most of the inquiring doctors say they would prefer countries in Africa and the Middle East.

Conlan notes, however, that there is a problem with foreign pay scales.

"We've got several hundred openings in foreign clinics and hospitals but only 10 per cent of them offer competitive salaries," he said.

But "from the tone of the letters, I'm convinced physicians are seriously looking outside the U.S," he added.

Conlan said many of the letters came from California, where huge rises in malpractice premiums have driven some doctors out of the state and others into early retirement. Grassroots physicians groups have begun work slowdowns to protest premium hikes scheduled for next year of up to 486 per cent (although the insurance commissioner recently ruled the rates could jump no more than 327 per cent).

Even with the commissioner's action, yearly premiums may rise to as much as $20,000 for doctors in high-risk specialties such as neurosurgery. Protesting physicians have called for a complete withholding of non-emergency services beginning Jan. 1.

At least two Los Angeles physicians interviewed said they're interested in the many available assignments which, according to Conlan, offer only subsistence pay or a small stipend for volunteer work.

Dr. Allen Priest, 36, plans to quit in February at a South-Central Los Angeles medical clinic.

"In a foreign country I can help people who need and appreciate my help and I won't have to worry about money and lawsuits."

"It used to be like that here, but the bubbles are going out of the champagne. It isn't fun anymore."

Dr. Thomas O. Humphrey, 50, a general surgeon with offices on posh Sunset Boulevard, also has sent letters to Option asking for a foreign medical assignment. Like Priest, he blames the malpractice insurance crisis.

Program breaks alcoholic habit

SAN MATEO (AP) — San Mateo County officials are reporting success in breaking alcoholics of their drinking habit through a self-help plan that costs only about one-third as much as more conventionally structured programs.

The alcoholic men, who have expressed interest in being cured, are placed in a motel here, four men to a room. They are prohibited from drinking and must attend nightly meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous for the first 90 days of their stay. Hence, the program's name, Project 90.

About 60 per cent of the men successfully break the drinking habit, program officials said.

Most of the men are on welfare, and program officials take $60 of each man's $121 monthly check to pay for the motel. The men use the remaining money to shop and cook for themselves.

Officials say the program costs the county only $7.50 per man per day compared to $24.75 per patient at the county Alcoholic Recovery Unit.

No change in mummy blood in 2,200 years

DETROIT (AP) — An electron microscopic study of an ancient Egyptian mummy shows no structural change in its blood cells in some 2,200 years, Wayne State University researchers have reported.

A pathologist at the university, where an autopsy was performed recently on the mummy, said that neither white nor red blood cells had altered in the 22 centuries since the corpse was embalmed.

"I can look at these cells today and recognize them by the same structural criterion that I would use in identifying these same cell types in my own blood," Jeanne Riddle, a Wayne State professor of pathology, said Saturday.

Dr. Riddle said well-preserved white blood cells were found in the mummy's skull. She said autopsies of mummies had revealed the presence of red blood cells before, but that this was the first time intact white cells had been found.

White blood cells are human blood's major defense mechanism against alien matter such as bacteria. They also pose a major problem in organ transplants because they tend to reject anything new.

Using a microscope that magnified the cells 27,000 times, Dr. Riddle examined the surface of the cells and the interior of some which had been cut open.

She said some questions raised by the findings probably cannot be answered. Among them:

—Did the Egyptian die of a cerebral hemorrhage — or stroke — or was the blood simply dislocated when the brain was removed through a hole drilled in the base of the skull during the embalming process?

—What was a small, round object adhering to the fibers in which the red and white cells were enmeshed? Dr. Riddle said it could be blood platelets, the oval discs associated with blood clotting.

The mummy, nicknamed PUM III, was loaned to the university's School of Medicine by the University of Pennsylvania Museum. The autopsy was performed last August.

MSAC offering classes in bilingual aide training

Two Mt. San Antonio College classes, acceptable toward a bilingual aide certificate and an A.A. degree, will be offered the spring semester at Garey High School in Pomona.

They are Introduction to Bilingual Education, Wednesdays from 4 to 7 p.m., and Speech 1A, Mondays from 4 to 7 p.m.

The classes will be open to California non-immigrant residents, including high school juniors and seniors.

For new studies, the filing deadline is Jan. 5 1976.

Additional information regarding the program may be obtained by calling 623-5277.

Called vital to Pomona

Education aid sought for Viets

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., and 25 other congressmen from California have appealed to House Speaker Carl Albert to aid their efforts to obtain additional federal funds for Vietnamese refugee children enrolled in public schools.

"This federal funding for refugee children is vital to areas such as Pomona and Fontana," said Lloyd. There are some 125 Vietnamese refugee children enrolled in Pomona's public schools.

Lloyd, secretary-treasurer of the California Democratic Caucus, said some 10,000 Vietnamese children between 5 and 17 are attending public schools in California.

The congressmen are asking Albert to push for immediate House consideration of a bill, co-sponsored by Lloyd, that was approved Dec. 9 by the Education and Labor Committee.

It provides first-year funding of $1,660 per student aged 5 to 19; second-year funding of $830 per student; and third-year funding of $400 per student.

"Local taxpayers should not be expected to shoulder the financial burden for these refugees who were introduced into the country by the federal government," said Lloyd.

DEBRIS DUMPED — Pomona fireman Connie Alvarez dumps charred contents out of a window at 1279 Wingate Place, Pomona, following a fire Tuesday which gutted a bedroom. The occupants, Mrs. Charlotte Robbins and sons Travis, 5, and Doug, 3½, escaped without injury. The fire, which apparently started in a closet, caused extensive damage to the home.

Valley writers present awards

Pomona Valley Writer's Club, at its Christmas dinner recently in Pomona, awarded trophies to winners of its Christmas writing contest.

Edna Cash of Ontario was first-place winner in the juvenile division with "Santa Claus to the Rescue." Joan Copeland won second place with "Silent Chimes."

Gayle Donahue of Chino was first-place winner in short fiction with "The King's Light." Jo Quici of Upland won second place with "Bon Natale".

Kit Vargo of Ontario won the first-place trophy in nonfiction with "There is a Santa Claus." Second place winner in that category was June Fifield of Claremont with "A Christmas Surprise."

First place in the poetry contest was won by Mrs. Donahue with "Christmas Meant Momma." Colleen Riggs of Alta Loma with "It's Christmas" won second place.

Selected for recognition in their professions were Helen Dizney, juvenile; Dorothy Turner, fiction; Harry Hofmann, nonfiction; and Peg Buchanan, poetry.

Club members will meet Jan. 20 at 7 p.m. in the Ontario Public Library.

Music students entertain patients

Hospital patients and other shut-ins are being entertained over the holidays by two musical groups from the Milton Mann Accordion Studios in Pomona.

Twenty youngsters in the sophomore group presented a Christmas program of songs and skits for Ward 21 of Pacific State Hospital, Pomona, recently.

The senior group, comprised of about 20 youths, entertained at Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital in Claremont a few days ago.

The senior group appeared at the Montclair Plaza Tuesday in a program of Christmas music.

The groups are available for programs for patients in convalescent hospitals or rest homes throughout the year, according to one of the teachers, Don Watt.

Upland library hours change for holidays

The Upland Public Library will be open to the public until 5 p.m. today and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Dec. 31 but will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day.

During the rest of the holiday season, the library will be open from Monday through Thursday from 9:15 a.m. to 9 p.m. and from 9:15 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The Hobby Circle will not meet during the holidays but will resume on Jan. 6 and Jan. 7 at 10 a.m. with Betty Maxie of the holiday staff showing her puppets.

"The Wonders of Portugal, Spain and Morroco," a slide show with music, will be presented by C.J. Lamore in the library multipurpose room at 2 p.m. Jan. 7.

On Jan. 13 and Jan. 14 at 10 a.m., Winnie Ragsdale, director of the George C. Stone Center for Children's Books at the Claremont Colleges, will be the speaker at the Hobby Circle program.

On Jan. 14, a Bicentennial book talk, "Boston," will be presented by Leslie Admire from 2 to 4 p.m. in the multipurpose room.

On Jan. 20 and Jan. 21, Opal Callaway of Aladdin's shop will present a program on flower arranging at 10 a.m.

Why, Santa, of course!

DALLAS (AP) — For three weeks the Rev. Patrick Hanser conducted Advent Masses for children of Holy Trinity Catholic church to acquaint them with the religious significance of Christmas.

Behind the altar a big sign proclaimed, "Let us rejoice for He is coming."

At the final session before the big day, Father Hanser wound up with a question: "Who is He that is coming?"

In reply came a chorus: "Santa Claus! Santa Claus!"

Women made small or medium headlines this year

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There were women who made headlines, though not great big headlines, in 1975.

Christel Bochatay, 9, became the youngest person to climb to the top of Mont Blanc, Europe's highest peak.

Marian Hart, 83, flew solo from Washington, D.C., to Dublin. She was said to be the oldest woman ever to fly the Atlantic alone.

Sandy Allen of Shelbyville, Ind., believed to be the tallest woman in the world at 7 feet 5, played one of Casanova's lovers in a Federico Fellini movie in Rome.

Gloria Hurd, 29 inches tall, billed on the carnival circuit as the world's shortest woman, had a son 18.5 inches tall.

Debbie Davis of Lewisville, Tex., 20, gave birth to four girls and a boy, six weeks premature. Her husband, Jerry, 21, is a mechanic.

Diana Nyad, 25-year-old marathon swimmer, swam around Manhattan Island on her second attempt in 11 days. The 28 miles took her 7 hours and 57 minutes, beating the old record by 59 minutes.

Butterfly McQueen, 64, who played Scarlett O'Hara's maid Prissy in the 1939 film, "Gone with the Wind," was graduated from the City College of New York.

Fanne Foxe, striptease dancer whose name is Annabelle Battistella, associated with Rep. Wilbur Mills in several public incidents, moved to Westport, Conn., with her three teenage children, where she worked on her autobiography.

Martha Mitchell was found to have malignant myeloma, a rare form of bone marrow cancer.

Viktorya Fyodorova came to the United States from Russia to meet her father, retired Adm. Jackson R. Tate, who only recenly discovered that she had been born of his World War II romance with Russian actress Zova Fyodorova. Her father adopted her and she married a jet pilot, Frederick R. Pouy, of Stamford, Conn.

Lettie Gay Carson, who wages a one-woman war for improving train service in the Northeastern United States, won an order for restoration of passenger service on the Harlem Division of the Penn Central north to Millerton, N.Y. She wants it to go as far as Pittsfield, Mass.

Jockey Mary Bacon made her Ku Klux Klan membership known when she went to a Klan rally in Walker, La., in April.

The widow and children of a researcher who committed suicide in 1953 after he was made an unknowing participant in a CIA experiment with the effects of LSD is suing over the "wrongful death" of Frank R. Olson. She is Alice O son of Frederick, Md., who only this year learned the circumstances of her late husband's death.

The "miniskirted judge" of Los Angeles Municipal Court, Noel Cannon, cited for 24 allegations of willful misconduct, is the third judge in California history to be removed by the State Commission of Judicial Qualification. She was criticized for wearing exotic costumes in court and bringing her pet poodle to sit on her lap while she rendered judgments.

Leftist guerrillas from Zaire released Barbara Smuts of Ann Arbor, Mich., unharmed after six days of captivity in the wilderness of Tanzania. She relayed ransom demands and Stanford University paid an estimated $40,000 after which Carrie Hunter of Atherton, Calif., Emilie Bergmann of The Netherlands and Kenneth Smith, Garden Grove, Calif., were released. All had been studying in Africa with anthropologist Jane Goodall.

French archeologist Francoise Claustre, 38, was captured by rebels in Chad in May 1974. They demanded ransom from France, then set Sept. 23, 1975, as the date of her execution. Her husband, Pierre, tried to rescue her and also was captured. While the Chad government condemned the French government for dealing with rebel leader Hissen Habre, France paid him $2.2 million in cash and supplies. He asked for some weapons to complete the deal.

Advanced femine thought

Seed sprouted long ago

WASHINGTON — Many Colonial women heard the fervent calls of "liberty," "equality," and "freedom" and bridled at the circumstance that while the Patriots declared all men equal, they drew the line at declaring women' equal to men.

In short, the seeds of modern feminism already were sprouting in America long before the Colonies declared their independence.

Researchers at the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration have unearthed records of many heroines during the American Revolution — and also found some strikingly advanced feminist thought.

Abigail Smith Adams, wife of the second president, was among the most forthright in her views. In a letter to her husband 200 years ago, she said:

"I cannot say that I think you very generous to the ladies, for whilst you are proclaiming peace and good will to men, emancipating all nations, you insist upon retaining an absolute power over wives . . . we have it in our power not only to free ourselves but to subdue our masters."

Abigail remained in Massachusetts, taking full charge of family affairs including running a farm while her peppery husband John, pursued revolutionary politics. As the Declaration of Independence was being debated, she wrote to her husband in Philadelphia: "I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors . . . That your sex are notoriously tyrannical is a truth so thoroughly established as to admit of no dispute."

Mercy Otis Warren was another outspoken feminist patriot who like Abigail, rebelled at the social pressures against women who wanted a serious education. Writing that if women's minds seemed to dwell on trifles while men dealt with power and wealth, she noted:

"The deficiency lies not so much in (the) inferior contexture of female intellects as in the different education bestowed on the sexes."

She deeply resented the practice in the Colonies and elsewhere in the world of fathers using their marriageable daughters as a means of bartering for wealth or power.

She is perhaps best remembered for her play, "The Group," a passionate plea for independence. The play was a major success, even though many men were upset that a woman should set her pen to such a serious subject.

There well may have been a wealth of feminist thought and sentiment during the Revolution. But women were discouraged from putting such things down on paper and much may have disappeared because no one thought such things were of much importance.

Charles Adams, one of Abigail's grandson's wrote: "The heroism of the females of the Revolution has gone from memory with the generation that witnessed it and nothing, absolutely nothing, remains on the ear of the young of the present day but the faint echo of an expiring general tradition."

What was true of heroism was almost certainly true of such radical ideas as women's equality.

Joyce Brothers

Take a closer look

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I want a face-lift and the first doctor I went to talked it over with me and then decided at the last minute, or what seemed to be the last minute, that he didn't want to perform the surgery. Since I was able and willing to pay his enormous fee, I was quite angered by this. Naturally, I found another man who would do the job, but I haven't had the surgery done yet because the first doctor's reaction made me hesitant. I was nervous enough, but now I'm even more anxious about it. I can't understand why that doctor would tell me not to have it.

I'm very shy and have an extremely difficult time socially, probably because I feel unattractive and old. I'm in my mid-30s and I can't stand myself. — B.C.

Dear B.C.: I've no way of knowing why your doctor decided you weren't a candidate for plastic surgery. However, if I were you, I'd certainly arrange for another appointment so you can discuss this with him. His reason may be something quite simple and may relieve your mind, or he may have reached his decision because he felt that surgery couldn't possibly accomplish all that you wished.

Sometimes doctors don't want to take patients if they feel that no matter what they do, the patient will never be satisfied. Every plastic surgeon is familiar with patients who have projected all their emotional and social problems onto their faces. They're convinced that life would be perfect if only they had a different look. Of course, this isn't the case. Often, plastic surgery can help, but it isn't magic and many of the problems will continue to exist until the person changes inside and is willing to look deeper, beyond the superficial exterior.

Shyness is an inability to realize one's own potential. It may interest you to know that nearly half of the adults in the U.S. consider themselves shy. Being shy is being negatively self-critical.

According to Stanford University research psychologist, Dr. Philip Zimbardo, shyness, in many ways, is a phobia. It should be attacked with some positive program because if it goes untreated and ignored, it can limit one's life and develop to extremes. He suggests that "assertiveness training" is excellent for shy people for it helps them to participate gradually and to gain a feeling of self-confidence. Just knowing that there are other people just as shy and insecure as you are may help you to cope with and overcome your problem.

Developing interests that pull you out of yourself and force you to concentrate on others is also helpful because it tends to give perspective to all problems, your own and those of others.

Since you can afford plastic surgery, I assume you can also afford professional advice, which might enable you to begin to analyze why you feel so unattractive and inadequate. The fact that you feel "old" in your mid-30s is an indication that you need to begin to question your values and your priorities. Since we live in a youth-oriented society, it is especially important that people learn how to value themselves and others when they are no longer young. Aging need not be negative. There are many positive values that can make life in later years rewarding and fulfilling. This is often the period when we have time to develop our potential.

Take a second, closer look at yourself and then talk again with the doctor about his views.

Couple living in Arizona

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. David Shaver have established a home in Lake Havasu City, Ariz., following their marriage in the home of the groom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Shaver of Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

The former Miss Jane Kowite is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kowite of La Verne. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Shaver of La Verne and Vearl Shaver of La Verne.

Honor attendant was Miss Karen Hill of La Verne.

Best man was Michael Sweeney of Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

Bridesmaid was Mrs. Sue Sweeney of Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

The couple left the reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sweeney of Lake Havasu City, Arizona for a wedding trip to Lake Alamo.

JULIE DUCOTE

Spring nuptial rite set

Miss Julie Antoinette Ducote and Thomas Ray Graves, Jr. of San Dimas are engaged.

The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy R. Ducote of San Dimas, is attending San Dimas High School.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Graves, Sr. of San Dimas, was graduated from San Dimas High School in 1974. He is employed by Foothill Ford.

A spring wedding is planned.

Nylon zipper

Look for a narrow and lightweight nylon zipper that says Talon, to give those trousers the proper fashion drape, and the needed strength to respond to men's active lifestyles. But if jeans are on your list, look for ones with a metal zipper to take the many launderings and heavy wear jeans get.

Gold mine ahead for baseball players

NEW YORK (AP) — Yesterday, Catfish Hunter. Today, Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally. Tomorrow, the world.

That's right. The same status that brought millions to Hunter a year ago, that will bring riches to Messersmith and maybe, McNally, could be a gold mine for almost every major league baseball player.

It's free agency, a sort of financial haven in which no one has you, yet everybody wants you. And it could happen to hundreds of ballplayers for the 1977 baseball season.

Peter Seitz, the impartial arbitrator who pushed Catfish Hunter towards a $3.75 milion pot of gold, waved his magic wand Tuesday and ruled that pitchers Messersmith and McNally were free agents. Seitz said that both pitchers played the 1975 season without signing contracts and, accordingly, have ended their contractual commitments, Messersmith with the Los Angeles Dodgers and McNally with the Montreal Expos.

Messersmith, a high-quality pitcher with two 20-victory campaigns under his belt and a 19-14 record last season, could command some sky-high bids from the major league teams. On the other hand, McNally, who left the Expos last June because his arm was wasted, may only be worth dirt. He couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday but, when last seen at his car dealership in Billings, Mont., he was not looking to ride the comeback trail.

So it appears that Messersmith will be 1976's glamour boy and most wanted man, just like Hunter was one year ago. But it also appears that there may be a lot of competition for that title in 1977.

On Dec. 20, all individual contracts had to be mailed to the major league players. Paragraph 10 (a), the renewal clause, which Seitz said could be invoked by the owners only once, is in every one of those contracts.

According to Marvin Miller, executive director of the major league players association who joined Seitz in voting 2-1 against owners' agent John Gaherin in Tuesday's historic decision, each player's contract is an independent document— separate from the labor contract between the players and the owners.

Miller says the labor contract expires Dec. 81 but those individual contracts are a different matter. If a player does not sign his contract by Mar. 1 and is notified within 10 days of Mar. 1 by his owner that the owner is renewing the contract in accordance with 10 (a), then the player may perform the 1976 season without a contract.

And presto, he's an unsigned but not an unwanted player, and after the season, he becomes a free agent.

Miller said it doesn't matter what happens in the upcoming collective bargaining between the players association and the owners on a new labor contract. "Ten (a) is part of the individual contracts," Miller said, "and Tuesday's decision immediately affects almost every player without any question."

Miller said the only exceptions to this were players with multi-year contracts covering the 1976 season, players who already have signed one-year contracts for 1976 and players who go to salary arbitration, if there is salary arbitration, in 1976.

In the past, any player going to salary arbitration had to sign a contract, with the impartial arbitrator merely filling in a final figure.

Seitz agreed with Miller's interpretation of the free agent potential of the 1976 individual contracts.

Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, said he didn't know what affect Tuesday's decision would have on the individual contracts.

So what does all this mean? What will happen to the national pastime?

Dick Moss, counsel for the players association who argued the Messersmith-McNally cases last month, said the decision "will not lead to many players leaving teams." He pointed to basketball, in which a player can move between the American and National Basketball Associations after fulfilling his contractual commitments. But he said in the last five years, only nine players have switched leagues.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, however, predicted disaster.

"I am enormously disturbed by this arbitration," Kuhn said. "If this interpretation prevails, baseball's reserve system will be eliminated by the stroke of a pen. It would be a disaster for the great majority of the players, the clubs, and most of all, the fans."

Cleve Porter earns a job

Cleve Porter should have a Merry Christmas.

The USC sophomore had his biggest games of his career last weekend when the Trojans swept a pair over Howard and Colorado.

After sitting on the bench throughout his freshman season and early this year, Porter responded by scoring 16 and 17 points respectively in the two wins.

"I think it's just a case of getting to play," was the comments of the Ganesha High product after Saturday's performance against Colorado.

"I've been ready to play for a long time," he continued. "It's just I've had my ups and downs. Now I've got my head together, I think I've proved to myself I can do it."

Porter will be enjoying the holidays in Hawaii with the Trojans in the Rainbow Classic.

Thanks to his big weekend, Porter is now sixth in scoring with a 6.5 average. He is also shooting at a 59.5 per cent clip after making 15 of 21 shots against Howard and Colorado.

It's not surprising Porter would progress this season.

He was the Trojans second leading scorer with a 14.5 average on USC's fall tour to Japan.

Following the Japan trip, USC Coach Bob Boyd said, "Cleve is a sophomore who has made great improvement in his game. This is due primarily to sustaining his concentration better. He has all the physical qualities to become an outstanding college player."

It appears Porter has earned the third forward spot as the first reserve behind senior Bob Trowbridge and junior Greg White.

UP AT OREGON, Garey High graduate Greg Ballard is off to a fine start in his junior campaign with the Ducks.

Oregon Coach Dick Harter recently praised the Pomonan by saying, "Greg is the most underrated player in the Pacific-8 Conference. I think fans will come to realize just how fine a player he is."

According to the latest stats from Oregon, Ballard is averaging 15 points and 13.7 rebounds a game.

Not very many 6-7 college players can average that many rebounds.

BILL WILLIAMS, a La Verne College graduate and a coaching fixture in the valley for years, is the new head football coach at the University of San Diego.

The 26-year-old Williams started his coaching career with Pop Warner teams in Ontario. Later, He served on the staff at Azusa High and was an assistant for John Zinda at Claremont-Mudd.

Williams went to USD in 1973 as an assistant for Andy Vinci, the present Cal Poly coach. He also served the past two seasons as the defensive coordinator under Dick Logan, who resigned at the end of the season last month.

He is a 1971 graduate of La Verne.

WATCH FOR DAVE SHAMBLIN, the junior wide receiver from Bonita High, in Friday's Fiesta Bowl. Shamblin should be seeing some action when Nebraska has the ball.

Because of the big mess the bowls have gotten themselves into, the Fiesta Bowl ended up with one of the top attractions in undefeated Arizona State vs. powerful Nebraska.

If there ever was a time for Arizona State to prove it belongs among the national grid powers, this is it. There won't be a better opportunity.

McGlothlin funeral services set today

UNION, Ky. (AP) — Funeral services will be held today for Jim McGlothlin, a 14-game winner on the Cincinnati Reds 1970 National League championship club who died Tuesday at his home after a lengthy illness.

McGlothlin, 32, finished out his baseball career in 1974 with the Chicago White Sox, who had obtained him from the Reds in 1973. He had a career mark of 67-77.

He spent his first five years in the major leagues with the California Angels before being traded to Cincinnati in 1969. While with the Angels, he pitched three straight shutouts in 1967 and was named to the American League All-Star team that season.

McGlothlin was stricken last February while vacationing in Florida during baseball's spring training. He lost 45 pounds at one point during his struggle, but was confident he had overcome the illness last May when he said: "I'm supposed to be six feet under, but I never considered dying."

He is survived by his wife and three children.

Goodrich Laker hero

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — The Lakers came out of their trance just enough in the last 16 minutes to snap their four-game losing streak Tuesday night.

Until then, they had played liked somnambulists. Sparked by Gail Goodrich, who scored 21 of his season-high 35 points in the second half, the Lakers managed to put the Kansas City Kings away, 111-97.

Before the game, announcer Chick Hearn had told callers on the Lakers Hot Line program that a series of meetings had been held the last two days for the purpose of "shaking things up."

Hearn said he thought the Lakers would play differently. They did . . . but not until nearly eight minutes into the third quarter.

They were hanging on to a five-point lead at that point, 70-65. Goodrich had put them there with a basket and two free throws. The little guard was in a hot streak that saw him throw in four more baskets, six in a row and score 13 points.

The Lakers had a comfortable, 10-point lead, 82-72, when the period ended.

Questioned about the meeting, or meetings, Goodrich first took an extremely circuitous route in his explanation. But, when pressed, finally admitted there was concern about the players' attitude. "Complacency" was a word that was used in the meeting.

Despite the win, it is not going to be a happy Christmas at the "Fabulous Forum."

The Lakers' problems apparently go deeper than just the bad road trip. Hearn, who bears the title Assistant General Manager, is very close to owner Jack Kent Cooke.

On his broadcasts, the Laker announcer has expressed his displeasure frequently with the lack of passing, poor use of the clock at the end of quarters and overall lack of effort.

Even so it jolted one to hear him tell a caller on the hot line show that if it weren't for the different center (Kareem Abdul-Jabbar instead of Elmore Smith) he thought this year's Laker club had played worse than last years. That last year's team had been the most disappointing Laker team he'd ever seen and that this year's club was MORE disappointing.

Small wonder then that coach Bill Sharman told writers after the game that one of the things discussed at the meeting Tuesday was, "To get the players to do more passing and less dribbling. We even have one play where everybody is supposed to touch (handle) the ball before it's shot," he added.

Sharman called the first half a "bad half" and admitted the Lakers didn't pick up until well into the third quarter. "But we played good defense and with great intensity," he concluded.

Good defense? Probably. Great intensity? Maybe . . . in the last four minutes of the third quarter and the final 12 minutes. But most of the time the Lakers didn't seem to be working (playing) very hard.

Kansas City wasn't much better. There were times when you had to pinch yourself to make sure you really were watching professionals. The Kings looked like they wanted to play but didn't know how. The Lakers looked like they knew how but didn't care to.

It was the dullest close game the writer can remember. Even Jabbar got bored and didn't take a single shot in the second quarter. But the big center finished with 23 points (only five in the first half), 22 rebounds, seven blocked shots and five assists.

Attendance was announced as 11,696. Maybe they sold that many tickets, but the 17,505-seat Forum appeared no more than half filled.

And that is the major source of consternation to J.K.C. The owner has settled for just the one NBA Championship so far. But he cannot abide having his team play to empty seats.

The Lakers have a super star (Jabbar). They have won 15 of 16 games at home performing well most of the time. But the people stay away.

Sharman has been a brilliant coach. But the past two years, his life has been marred by personal tragedy which may or may not have effected his professional life.

Cooke is a demanding owner. The fact remains Sharman is on the last year of a five-year contract. Last year's Laker team was the worst since the club moved to Los Angeles from Minneapolis. Except for Jabbar, this year's team hasn't looked any better.

And remember. It was Cooke and General Manager Pete Newell, not Sharman, that swung the trade for Jabbar.

It was Hearn, not Sharman, who persuaded the Lakers to sign Don Ford. After a good start, the 6-9 forward from Santa Barbara has tailed off considerably.

Sharman benched Ford for two games. Under Cooke's orders, Ford started Tuesday night against Kansas City. He played 13 minutes and two in the second. His efforts produced one field goal (in six shots) for two points and four rebounds.

Cooke sees in the blond youngster (Ford) a possible crowd favorite and box office draw (Forum publicity and the P.A. announcer call him "Prez"). Sharman sees a willing rookie with a lot of rough edges to polish.

These are troubled days at the Forum.

Jaworski may face Cardinals

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams get some support from their hospital corps this Saturday against St. Louis, but Coach Chuck Knox still isn't sure who'll be his quarterback in the opening National Football League playoff game.

"James Harris' condition is a day to day proposition," Knox said Tuesday. "He's taking treatment daily and will throw to see how his arm feels. But we can't tell."

Harris, the No. 1 signal caller, suffered a bruised shoulder at the New Orleans on Nov. 30. He appeared for only three plays against Green Bay in a 22-5 Rams' victory and didn't play in last Saturday's 10-3 upset of defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh.

Ron Jaworski, the second-year pro from Youngstown State took over in those games.

Unless Harris shows rapid improvement, it will be the understudy going against the Cardinals at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Knox does have regular fullback Lawrence McCutcheon back for the game and he's been the leading rusher for the club with 911 yards. offensive tackle Charlie Cowan is still questionable but defensive back Monte Jackson will be back.

"We won't know until late in the week who'll be starting at quarterback," Knox told his Tuesday morning meeting with newsmen. "We have to see if Harris can throw and have accuracy and velocity.

"It comes down to how well he's throwing on Thursday."

That's Christmas Day and the Rams will go through a regular practice although Knox will start it an hour early to allow players more time with their families.

Basically, the game was seen as a clash between the rugged Los Angeles defense and the explosive Cardinal offense headed by a quick line, quarterback Jim Hart and fullback Jim Otis who has 1,076 yards to lead the National Football Conference.

"It's a great blocking line and Hart, a veteran of 10 years in the league, knows where all of his receivers are all of the time," Knox said. "Even if somebody breaks down on blocking, he's going to get his pass off."

Hart has been sacked just eight times this season while during the same period, Ram defenders have sacked opposing quarterbacks 43 times.

"This will be the biggest challenge to our defensive club," declared the coach whose defenders shut off Pittsburgh without a touchdown for the first time this season. "If we don't play with emotion, an inspired football game, we're going to get beat."

He said that against Pittsburgh, the defense realized the problems of the injury riddled offense "and responded to the challenge."

That puts the Rams season record at 12-2 with the Cardinals at 10-3-1.

Wetenkamp, Pokorski Players of Week

Does TV hurt local cage crowds?

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

The small basketball crowds in the area was discussed at Tuesday's weekly luncheon at The Castaway Restaurant.

Various reasons were given by the coaches for the poor crowds.

The subject was brought up when Mt. San Antonio College Gene Victor talked about the recent Chaffey Tournament.

Victor said the tournament as usual produced outstanding junior college basketball but was poorly attended.

"It's too bad," Victor said. "There is good basketball in the area but the people just aren't coming out."

As for a reason, Victor said, "The four-year college games on television are killing us."

La Verne's Art Bias feels too much competition is a big reason.

"There are too many tournaments going on at the same time," Bias said. "They are spliting the basketball fans too much."

Cal Poly's Don Hogan has a different explanation.

"I think it's a regional thing," he said. "The smallest crowd we have played before this season was at Stanford."

Poly saw some good crowds on its tour of Houston, Texas, Louisville, North Dakota and North Dakota State.

MSAC's Tom Pokorski, who scored 50 points and grabbed 47 rebounds to lead the Mounties to the consolation title at Chaffey, was selected the College Player of the Week. He is a 6-7 sophomore from Covina.

Damien High's Mike Wetenkamp, who scored 73 points in the Spartans' three games in the Alhambra Tournament, was honored as the High School Player of the Week by Pomona Elks Lodge 789.

Like Coach Bill Roberts, Wetenkamp feels the Spartans' San Antonio League opener on Jan. 6 against Garey is the key to the season.

"I feel we have a great chance to win the SAL," the 6-foot-3 forward said. "If we can beat Garey, there will be no stopping us."

The Claremont resident isn't concerned about Damien's present 5-5 record.

"Considering the injuries, I'm pretty happy with our play so far," he said.

Being a senior, Wetenkamp says he has become more of a leader this season.

"It's been a combination of doing it on my own plus the coaches' urging," Wetenkamp said.

Quoting the coaches:

VICTOR, MSAC: "We got beat badly by a good Pasadena team in the first game of the Chaffey Tournament. But we came the next morning at 9:30 and played hard against a team (Glendale) we had already defeated by 18 points. It showed a lot of character. We played very tough defensively the last three days. I like that. Let me tell you about our conference. Cerritos just won the Modesto Tournament, the strongest in California this year. It was a great victory for Cerritos. We are scheduled to open conference play at Grossmont on Jan. 10 but we may not since Grossmont is scheduled over in Hawaii on that date. It's now up to the conference on what will happen with the game. We will be playing in the Hancock Tournament this Saturday, Sunday and Monday. We are also playing the Nevada Las Vegas junior varsity on Jan. 6."

BIAS, La Verne: "We played one game last week and I wish we hadn't played it. Cal Baptist used its running game and we just ran out of gas. Cal Baptist is probably the best team in the District (NAIA District Three). It is quite a machine. We hope to rebound a little this week in the Chico Tournament. We hope to get it together there. We meet host Chico State Sunday night then host Alaska here on Jan. 3. Alaska is also in the Chico Tournament and figures to be the team to beat. We are using nine solid players on a rotating basis. I feel the players are happy with the way it's going. Stanley Dill, a transfer from Compton, will be a big help to us."

DON HOGAN, Cal Poly: "We had our best defensive effort of the season in our 63-61 loss to Stanford but we only played offense in one half. We've been playing very well against tough competition but we haven't been able to put two good halves together. I don't agree with Art about trying to keep the players happy. I feel the players should keep me happy. With 10 players, they have to realize that not all 10 can play all the time. I'm looking forward to conference play. That's our objective and I have seen enough to feel positive about it. We play at Biola Saturday night then take a week off. Our home opener is on Jan. 10 against Athletes in Action."

BILL ROBERTS, Damien: "Wetenkamp's typical game is 10 baskets on 20 shots. He is also our leading rebounder plus our captain. He is a very impressive player and young man. I just hope he gets more recognition so he can get a free education at college. We have had our problems so I am satisfied with our 5-5 record. Jon Kolodge has been out with a sprained ankle but should be ready to play in league games. We don't play again until Jan. 2 which pleases our players and my wife."

Woody plans no moves

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Woody Hayes, Ohio State's legendary football coach, says there is no chance he will follow old college rival John McKay into the professional ranks.

"I've never been courted by the pros. Oh, Maybe a few times, but nothing serious," said Hayes Tuesday in the midst of Rose Bowl preparations for UCLA on New Year's Day.

McKay matched wits with Hayes in four Rose Bowls — they each won two — before departing Southern California for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

For one thing, Hayes' age of 62 would be against him for any pro offer. Secondly, he's happy where he is.

"I like to work around a university where there is a great spirit," said Ohio State's coach for 25 seasons and a college mentor for three decades.

"I like to feel I have something to do with the forming of young men," he added.

So if Hayes remains on the collegiate level, how many more years will he continue?

"State law says I can keep coaching at Ohio State until 1983. I don't know. There's nothing else I would rather do," replied Hayes who reaches the mandatory retirement age of 70 in eight years.

Hayes is matching strategy with Dick Vermeil, a coach 23 years his junior in the Rose Bowl. It is Vermeil's first try in the Pasadena Classic, the eighth for Hayes. The Ohio State coach has won four and lost three.

Hayes is not surprised his opponent is UCLA rather than Southern California, California or Stanford.

"I prophesied on the flight back to Ohio after we beat UCLA that we would be meeting them in the Rose Bowl. You ask my assistant coaches," he said Tuesday prior to a team workout.

The Ohio State coach was recalling an early October game with the host Bruins, a contest the Big Ten conference champions won 41-20.

Hayes insists it will be much tougher this time. "To beat UCLA, we will have to execute well on everything. We've got to play a great football game," he said.

UCLA received encouraging news Tuesday from its injured ranks.

Randy Cross, the Bruins' second team All-American offensive guard, is expected to practice Friday after battling an ankle sprain. Wendell Tyler, the school's all-time single season rushing champion, gets the protective cast off his fractured left wrist the same day.

Vermeil gave his squad today and Christmas off while Hayes drilled the top-ranked Buckeyes at Citrus College. Ohio State also will take Christmas off.

There's more to it than just winning

By Associated Press

To paraphrase an old saying, it's not always whether you win or lose, it's whether you played the game well.

Three of the West Coast's four college basketball teams who are ranked in The Associated Press' top-20 poll this week played Tuesday night and the trio won. But two of the winning coaches weren't very happy with their team's play.

Meanwhile, an unrated West Coast team played and lost but the losers played very well indeed.

Topping the card, UCLA's fourth-ranked Bruins overcame their own sloppiness to wear down a mediocre Baylor team 96-75. Junior forwards Marques Johnson and Richard Washington teamed for 37 points and the Bruins easily won game No. 87 in a row at their home court, Pauley Pavilion.

No. 12-ranked Nevada Las Vegas didn't play well at all in the first half, but finally put it all together in the second for a 101-83 triumph over UC Santa Barbara. The Rebels opened the second half by outscoring the Gauchos 24-6.

Eddie Owens led the 9-0 winners with 28 points.

University of San Francisco, the 14th-ranked team nationally, raced out to a 43-30 halftime lead over St. Peter's of Jersey City, N.J., and coasted to an 86-71 victory.

Pepperdine, unbeaten before its game with sixth-ranked Cincinnati but still unranked, played gallantly against the Bearcats. But center Robert Miller of the visitors hit a tipin at the buzzer to give Cincinnati a heart-stopping 76-74 victory to remain unbeaten.

Miller, who wound up scoring 24 points, hit the last two baskets for the Bearcats and the final one, on a rebound from a missed shot by teammate Pat Cummings, gave Cincinnati its eighth triumph.

UCLA's 6-6½ Johnson scored 20 points and the 6-10 Washington added 17 as the Bruins pushed their record to 6-1.

UCLA's starting guards, Brad Holland and Andre McCarter, played well for the Bruins, prompting losing Coach Charles Dawson of Baylor to say, "Holland was the difference in the first half. He was more of an influence than our freshman, Larry Spicer. Holland played like a pro with a 30-foot range."

Holland, a freshman who had 14 points, later said, "I thought we played well in the first half, but then we turned sloppy. We didn't play with the same intensity we should have in the second half."

His running mate, McCarter, had 10 points. Reserve guards Jim Spillane and Ray Townsend had eight and six, respectively for UCLA's often-maligned backcourt men.

The Bears' 6-foot-9 sophomore center Tony Rufus led all scorers with 32 points.

In other games, Jay Carter scored 20 points to lead Stanford, 4-3, to an 87-71 victory over winless St. Mary's and Santa Clara squeezed past Long Beach State 68-67 despite Anthony McGee's 24 points.

Oregon's pressing defense got the Ducks in foul trouble and when four men fouled out, Providence took a 76-68 triumph.

Santa Anita set for 39th meeting

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Santa Anita's 39th season of thoroughbred horse racing opens Friday and track officials apparently don't want to sit around guessing about what 1976 will bring: they've scheduled a classic race on the second day of the meeting.

The Kentucky Derby is this nation's most prestigious race each year and since that race is for 3-year-olds, a group of them are ready to kick off the derby chase Saturday in the California Breeders' Champion Stakes.

Seventy-seven days of racing are set for this track just east of downtown Los Angeles and the first race of importance is the one for which the requirements read: "2-year-olds foaled in California, 7 furlongs, $50,000."

The horse everyone will be looking at is Telly's Pop, the flashy colt owned by actor Telly Savalas. The race will be the last for these horses before they all turn 3 years old on Jan. 1. At that time they'll all become eligible to run in derby races.

Telly's Pop has won five of the six races he's been in, on four different tracks, and since this is Savalas' first gallop in the horse racing set, he's considered something of a whiz.

Other Hollywood personalities have become involved recently in horse racing.

Actress Angie Dickinson and her songwriter-husband Burt Bacharach have been active for some time as thoroughbred owners. Television producer Quinn Martin, actors Don Adams, Jack Klugman, Walter Matthau, Rod Steiger and Lorne Greene, musician Herb Alpert and movie producer Martin Ritt are among others involved in the game.

And actor Robert Mitchum has been heavily involved recently in quarter horse racing.

But none had the early, almost instantaneous success that Savalas has had with the sensational Telly's Pop, winner of such races as the the Del Mar Futurity, the $123,825 Norfolk Stakes and the California Juvenile Stakes. Those three victories made him the first winner of the Western Triple Crown for 2-year-olds.

And that makes him the probable favorite Saturday in the Breeders.

Friday's first session at Santa Anita features the $30,000 Palos Verdes Handicap. The meet's first $100,000 race is the Charles H. Strub stakes on Feb. 8 for older horses.

Other rich races on the program: the $100,000 Santa Margarita Handicap, Feb. 29; $250,000 Santa Anita Handicap, Mar. 7; $100,000 San Luis Rey Handicap, Mar. 21; $100,000 Santa Anita Derby, Mar. 28; $125,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap, April 4.

The Wednesday-through-Sunday meeting concludes April 8.

Muir's late rally tops Garey, 68-62

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Muir High outscored Garey 25-10 in the fourth quarter Tuesday night to win a thriller, 68-62, at Garey. The loss dropped the Vikings record to 6-4.

The Mustangs, trailing by as many as 14 points late in the third quarter of play, came back with a tough pressing defense and fast break offense to catch the Vikings and pass them in the closing minutes of the game.

"We missed a lot of easy shots in the first half," said Muir Coach Gary Talbert. "In the second half we made the easy shots we missed early and played good ball defensely."

Garey, which had played three quarters of good basketball, fell apart as the Vikings could not hit from either the field or free throw line. The Vikings, who had out rebounded Muir 33-20 through the first three quarters, were limited to one shot each time down.

The Vikings missed all 10 attempts at a one-and-one situation while the Mustangs hit 17 of 19. Also, Garey lost two of its starters with five personal fouls in center James Lofton and guard Kent Jordan midway through the fourth quarter.

Garey's head coach Mike Wells noted, "We thought we played a pretty good game as we played a poised game like we wanted for most of the game. But missing 10 foul shots in the fourth quarter killed us. We lost a possible 20 points at the foul line."

Muir's pressing press bothered Garey as it turned the ball over several times down the stretch in the fourth quarter. Pat Berryman led the Mustang comeback, scoring all 12 of his points in the second half. He gave the Mustangs a needed lift to enable them to chop away at Garey's big lead.

Garey built its lead on the strength of torrid outside shooting by Lofton, Jordon and Gary Carpenter. Carpenter scored 12 of his 20 points in the first half.

The Vikings led at halftime by 12 points at 38-26. They had outscored Muir by outrebounding the Mustangs and slipping a man down court occasionally for an easy fast break basket.

If Garey hadn't been ice cold at the free throw line the Vikes would have put the Mustangs away in the first half but by missing the free throws Muir was able to hang in there and begin to whittle the Viking lead away later on in the contest.

"We were very flat in the first half," remarked Talbert. "I think coming off our victory of a recent tournament caused us to be down for tonight's game but we bounced back. The team showed a lot of courage in pulling out tonight's game.

"Garey's Gary Carpenter is a really super all-around basketball player and he had a fine game against us."

Muir could put very little together offensely in the first half as the Mustangs could not hit easy jump shots and they didn't box the Vikings off the boards. But they put everything together finally to blitz Garey in the final minutes.

Darrell Marable was the Mustangs top scorer with 20 points followed by Gary Johnson's 16 and Mark Robinson's 15 points.

Garey's top point man was Carpenter with 20 points as the Vikings had four men in double figures. Jordan added 14 while Stanley Webster and Lofton had 12 points apiece. Jordan scored only two of his 12 points in the second half.

The Vikings resume action Friday afternoon at 3:30 in the first round of the Orange Tournament against El Modena. Garey is the defending tournament champion.

Tennis serves

Let's hope Santa's bag will have any number of goodies for all tennis people.

Take Arthur Ashe. His gift could well be recognition of a super year in the form of a concensus ranking as the world's No. 1 player in 1975.

For Billie Jean King, it might be contentment in World Team Tennis and doubles competition, or whatever she'll be playing in her partial retirement.

Give Raul Ramirez the presidency of Mexico, which he probably could have right now if he wanted it, anyway.

For Wimbledon and Forest Hills, get Billie Jean King out of partial retirement to bring dash and daring once again to the women's singles action.

Give Jimmy Connors the cunning to cope with an Ashe, Ramirez or Orantes in a big match. But only after he's also become their equal in good manners.

Forget about good manners for Ilie Nastase. Just give him many tournament victories so he'll have plenty of money to pay the inevitable fines.

For Evonne Goolagong, keep her husband nice enough to allow her to continue using that beautiful maiden name but make him gruff enough to crack down on walkabouts.

The list goes on: For Chris Evert, a motatorium on newsmen's questions about her status with Jimbo. For Manuel Orantes, clay courts everywhere. For Martina Navratilova, happiness in the U.S.A., her new home. For Bjorn Borg, privacy in the park. For Tony Trabert, a fountain of youth so that he can get up from the U.S. team captain's chair and win back the Davis Cup himself.

Give Claremont's Janice Metcalf an injury-free year so she can find out just how far she can go in the international women's tennis scene. Provide Lea Antanoplis with easy mastery of her school books at Glendora High so she can aim toward a potentially bright tennis career.

BREAKS UP PLAY — Marcel Dionne of the Kings has his drive towards the goal broken up by Boston's Dallas Smith.

Kings are optimistic after beating Boston

BOSTON (AP) — There's nothing like breaking a losing streak to lift a coach's spirits and make him an optimist.

"There are certain signs that we're starting to play better," Coach Bob Pulford of the Los Angeles Kings said Tuesday night after his team beat Boston 4-3 in a National Hockey League game.

"Before the end of the season, we should be a good hockey team," Pulford continued. "The number of shots they got showed we weren't playing that well yet."

Boston blasted 43 shots in the direction of Kings' goalie Gary Edwards, who specializes in goal tending against the Bruins in Boston. Los Angeles pestered the Bruins' Gilles Gilbert with 20.

"I know you've heard it before, but their goal tending beat us," said Boston Coach Don Cherry. "We had our chances, but we couldn't put the puck in the net."

The Kings capitalized on Boston mistakes for all four goals. Los Angeles stole the puck from Brad Park twice and from Johnny Bucyk once and converted for tallies. Another goal was scored when the puck bounced off a misplaced Bruin defenseman.

"We didn't cough the puck up that much," Cherry said, "but every time we did, it went in the net."

Little Marcel Dionne, the league's leading goal scorer with 24, got his third three-goal game of the season to lead the Kings. Dionne scored his three goals with only five shots on net.

Dionne and Butch Goring opened up a 2-0 lead for Los Angeles in the first period. After Gregg Sheppard scored the first of his two goals for Boston, Dionne made it 3-1.

Mike Murphy scored for Los Angeles early in the third period, before Bucyk tallied on a power play and Sheppard notched his second.

The Bruins leave on a long road trip and are not back in Boston Garden until next month.

"I'd like to stay within four or five points of Buffalo if I could," said Cherry, referring to the Sabres, who lead Boston by four points in the league's Adams Division.

Bradshaw set vs. Tarkenton

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Bradshaw will oppose Fran Tarkenton at quarterback when the American Conference takes on the National Conference in the Pro Bowl football game Jan. 26.

Bradshaw, quarterback for defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh, is one of nine Steelers named today to start for the AFC team in the nationally-televised game in the New Orleans Superdome. Tarkenton, who directed Minnesota to the National Football League playoffs, was one of seven Vikings starters named to the NFC team on Tuesday.

Other Steelers named to the AFC team are wide receiver Lynn Swann and running back Franco Harris on offense and end L.C. Greenwood, tackle Joe Greene, outside linebackers Jack Ham and Andy Russell, cornerback Mel Blount and safety Mike Wagner on the defense.

Baltimore, which will oppose the Steelers in the playoffs, and Oakland and Cincinnati, opening-round playoff opponents, have two each.

Colts named to start are tackle George Kunz on offense and end John Dutton on defense. The Raiders are guard Gene Upshaw and punter Ray Guy. Bengals starters are wide receiver Isaac Curtis on offense and corner Lemar Parrish on defense.

Other starters are tight end Riley Odoms, Denver, guard Bob Kuechenberg and center Jim Langer, both of Miami and running back O.J. Simpson of Buffalo on offense. AFC defensive starters are tackle Jerry Sherk of Cleveland, middle linebacker Willie Lanier of Kansas City and safety Jake Scott of Miami.

Minnesota starters for the NFC, which trails the series 3-2 after a 17-10 victory last year, are wide receiver John Gilliam, tackle Ron Yary, guard Ed White and running back Chuck Foreman on offense and tackle Alan Page, middle linebacker Jeff Siemon on defense.

Of the other teams in the playoffs, St. Louis and Los Angeles, the Cards dominated the offense and the Rams the defense. Cards named are wide receiver Mel Gray, tackle Dan Dierdorf, guard Conrad Dobler, center Tom Banks and running back Terry Metcalf on offense, cornerback Roger Wehrli on defense and kicking specialist Jim Bakken. The Rams contributed three defensive players—end Jack Youngblood, outside linebacker Isiah Robertson and tackle Merlin Olsen.

Dodgers help minor clubs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers announced two trades Tuesday to bolster their minor league clubs.

Outfielder-catcher Danny Walton was obtained from the Minnesota Twins in exchange for infielder Bobby Randall and infielder-catcher Ron Washington will join the Dodger organization in an exchange that sent catcher Steve Patchin to the Kansas City Royals.

Walton, 28, was assigned to the Dodgers' Albuquerque club of the Pacific Coast League. He played in 42 games for Minnesota last season hitting .175. With the Twins' Tacoma club of the PCL, he hit .306 with 13 home runs.

Washington, 23, was assigned to the Waterbury roster of the Eastern League. He hit .228 in 96 games for Jacksonville of the Southern League last year.

Boston Red Sox third baseman Rico Petrocelli hit safely in all seven World Series games in 1975, getting eight safeties and batting .308.

Zibell, Webster in Sunkist meet

LOS ANGELES — Two of the valley's top field event athletes will compete in the high school section of the 17th Sunkist Indoor games at the Sports Arena Friday, Jan. 16.

Pomona High's Hank Zibell will put the shot and Garey's Stanley Webster will enter the long jump. It will be Webster's second appearance in the prestigious Sunkist games.

The Garey jumper's best outdoor mark last season was a wind-aided 24-9. He had a legal best of 23-1.

Webster's primary competition at the Sports Arena will come from Manual Arts' Larry Doubleu, who has a legal 24-5½ and a wind aided 24-6½.

Zibell just missed the 60-foot mark last year with a best of 59-6½ in the shot put. He'll battle a six-man field including Lausen's Steve Montgomery (61-9¼) and Hart's Jon McKenzie (61-5).

The high school events will kick off the meet at 5:30 p.m. Open competition, beginning at 7:30, will include indoor record holders Dan Ripley and Tony Waldrop (mile), Olympic marathon champ Frank Shorter and sprint sensation Houston McTear of Florida.

'Pack falls to Harbor

TORRANCE — Claremont High lost to Newport Harbor, 2-1, Tuesday morning in a bid for third place in the South Torrance soccer tournament.

The Wolfpack was tied at 1 with Harbor at halftime, but the Orange County school used a penalty kick — its only shot on goal of the second half — to score the winning goal and hand the 'Pack its second straight loss.

Jim Van Zee scored Claremont's lone goal unassisted.

South Torrance beat Santa Barbara, 2-1, for the tourney championship Tuesday afternoon.

Cavs bow in title game

ANAHEIM — Montclair High's soccer team was stopped by Huntington Beach, 5-3, Tuesday night in the championship game of the Kennedy Tournament played at Western High.

Rick Adams scored all three Cavalier goals and was selected for the all-tourney team along with Montclair's Ray Garcia.

Adams scored nine of the Cavs' 13 goals in the five-game tournament.

USD stops Leos, 76-54

By DAVID NAVARRO
PB Correspondent

The La Verne Leos met a balanced San Diego basketball team that wore out the Leos, 76-54, Tuesday night at La Verne in a defensive battle.

La Verne gave the highly touted Toreros a strong game that was tight until 17 minutes were left when USD simply broke away with a sudden surge.

The first half, which was highlighted by two drives by 6-foot-5 Tim Gillette of La Verne was a tight game that was filled with forced turnovers, blocked shots and good defense. The Leos trailed at the half, 43-35.

The second half started at the same pace as the first half, defensive and hard. The two teams traded posession three times until a basket by 6-4 USD guard, Ken Smith.

Stylish free-wheeling dribbling of USD guard Eddie Davis started the momentum that saw the visiting Toreros lead jump by eight points to 66-50.

From then on the Leos lost composure and began to play sloppily. There were still some bright spots in the last half for La Verne with the brilliant play of substitute Stanley Dill. Dill, who had 10 points, played a tenacious man-to-man defense and teamed with Michael Winze to force three turnovers which resulted in baskets.

Their counterparts from San Diego responded with the shooting of their sub center Mike Strode who made seven points in the last half to ice the cake for USD.

High point men for the Leos were Dwight Washington, Gillette and Winze, with 10 points apiece. For the Toreros forward Richard Harnett had 12 points.

Miler set for Sunkist

LOS ANGELES — Tony Waldrop, the world indoor record holder in the mile at 3:55.0, has definitely decided to try for a place on the U.S. Olympic Games team.

Waldrop also announced he will run the mile in the 17th annual Sunkist Invitational, Jan. 16 at the Sports Arena.

Waldrop will be running on an identical, only newer, track to the San Diego course he set his 3:55.0 record in 1954.

LVL nipped at buzzer

AVALON — A pair of free throws with no time on the clock handed La Verne Lutheran a 67-66 loss to Avalon High Tuesday afternoon.

Greg Pittser was fouled at the buzzer and made both ends of a one-and-one situation to give the hosts the one-point victory.

It was an especially frustrating loss for the La Verne team since it had come back from as much as an 11-point deficit to overtake Avalon in the fourth quarter.

Lutheran guard Gregg Guenther used six assists from forward Oz Schultze to score 22 of his game-high 24 points in the second half. Center Russ Houston added 17 points and Schultze scored 10.

Lutheran, 6-3, will host Inland Christian Friday, Jan. 2, at 8 p.m.

Business briefs

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Testimony from oil company executives at the legislature's Joint Gas Pipeline impact Committee hearings indicates that production of natural gas at Prudhoe Bay will not reduce the amount of recoverable oil at the field.

Spokesmen for Exxon, BP Alaska and the Atlantic Richfield Co. contested the conclusions of a study conducted by H.J. Gruy and Associates at the request of the Department of the Interior.

That report indicated that gas production would decrease the volume of recoverable oil during the life of the North Slope fields by 400 million barrels.

Testifying for the industry were Resident Manager Kenneth Keep of BP, Judd Miller Jr. of Exxon and resident Manager Howard Slack of Arco. The three men said there was no reason any oil should be lost through gas production if sound management practices were used at the field.

Forrest Garb, president of H.J. Gruy, conceded that the projected figure for oil loss could be reduced by effective management.

The industry spokesman also objected to the report's conclusion that a well-head price of 47 cents per million cubic feet would be required for gas production to break even. They said the figure would be considerably higher.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Copperweld Chairman Phillip H. Smith, who led his firm's sometimes bitter fight to avoid being taken over by Paris-based Societe Imetal, has welcomed Imetal as a major shareholder.

Imetal announced Thursday that it had acquired about 67 per cent of Copperweld's common stock upon termination of its tender offer. Later in the day, Smith issued a statement saying he feels imetal made a solid investment in a healthy and growing company

"The tender offer is completed and behind us, and now we are looking to the future," mith said. "I am confident that Copperweld's growth is going to continue just as it has in the past, and we now welcome Imetal as an important shareholder."

Smith said that he and all other officers would remain with the firm, and another Copperweld spokesman indicated that Imetal's control is not yet total.

Imetal cannot take control of Copperweld's board of directors for another two years because the Pittsburgh-based firm has staggered board terms.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Despite a bad experience a century ago, Louisiana has kicked off a drive to lure another world's fair to New Orleans.

Gov. Edwin Edwards said Louisiana will be competing with California and Tennessee for permts from the U.S. Commerce Department and the Board of International Expositions in Paris.

Twenty million people are expected to visit the fair, generating $400 million and creating 6,000 jobs that year, the governor said.

New Orleans hosted one previous world's fair, the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition, from December 1884 through May 1885.

It was at that fair that a pretty visitor from Japan, the water hyacinth, was put on display. It hopped its tub and spread swiftly across Southeastern waterways to the intense dismay of boaters and fishermen. Most states now have water hyacinth eradiction programs.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mellon Bank, the nation's 15th largest, says the economy in 1976 will continue its modest recovery, with consumers playing a key role in the upswing.

Norman Robertson, Mellon's chief economist, predicted consumers will have more money in their pockets next year with an increase of 4 per cent.

Conflict spreads

Crime reports vs. fair trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conflict between the reporting of crime in the press and a defendant's right to a fair trial is in the spotlight again after Friday's reversal of a Georgia kidnaping conviction and a continuing legal battle over a Nebraska murder trial.

Many journalists think recent court decisions, notably a Nov. 20 order by Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun in the Nebraska mass murder case, have imposed unconstitutional conditions on what the press may report. They say this violates the First Amendment's protection of a free press.

Blackmun and the three federal judges who overturned the kidnaping conviction of William A. H. Williams represent the other point of view. They say that publicity surrounding a defendant can prevent a fair, unprejudiced verdict when the case gets to the jury.

In the case of Williams, who was convicted in the 1974 abduction of then Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy, the judges noted that news reports covered "his prior criminal record, his poor credit rating ... his overwhelming anti-Semitism ... and in short, every aspect of his life."

The same issue was raised in a third case Friday. Lt. William L. Calley's lawyer argued that a federal appeals court erred in reversing a judge's ruling that extensive news coverage of the My Lai massacre made it impossible to find unbiased jurors. In an appeal to the Supreme Court, the lawyer said Calley was denied due process of law because of "pervasive" publicity preceding his trial on charges of taking part in the massacre at a Vietnamese village.

The American Bar Association has had a committee of judges and lawyers at work with an eye to spelling out some guidelines to show how far the courts can go in restricting such publicity. News organizations are divided over whether they should cooperate.

Some say that they would be implying their approval of something that's unconstitutional in the first place. The committee originally planned to make a report at an ABA convention in Atlanta in February, but has indicated recently it may take longer than that.

Meanwhile, even before Friday's Calley appeal and the decision of a three-judge federal court on the Williams conviction, the murder case in Nebraska had brought the issue into sharp focus again.

Erwin Charles Simants, 29, is scheduled to go on trial Jan. 5 in North Platte, Neb. on charges of murdering six members of a Sutherland, Neb., family. A county judge sharply restricted what newsmen could report before the trial starts.

Blackmun removed some of the restrictions, but in doing so laid down some rules of his own which lawyers familiar with First Amendment cases say are unprecedented in their restrictions on pretrial reporting.

The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press compares Blackmun's order with the gag imposed, and later struck down by the Supreme Court, in the Pentagon Papers case. Only it says this one is more sweeping.

The Pentagon Papers order barred newspapers from continuing their publication of installments from classified documents about American involvement in the Vietnam war. In 1971 the Supreme Court struck it down in a 6-3 ruling, saying the government could not impose prior restraints on publication for national security reasons unless it showed "direct, immediate and irreparable damage."

In the Nebraska case, which does not involve national security, Blackmun barred pretrial reporting of confessions, certain other statements by the defendant and the circumstances of his arrest.

Phone overloads hurt air traffic

SAN FRANCISCO — (BW) — Stranded passengers and empty seats are missing each other because of a massive overload on the airline's telephone system in Los Angeles, said J. L. Brumit, Los Angeles vice president.

"We are constantly adding reservations personnel and are working hard to improve this situation. Meanwhile, TWA operated at a 65 per cent load factor Tuesday, which means that roughly one of every three seats to destinations such as New York, Boston and Chicago left empty," Brumit said.

"As we get closer to Christmas the bookings are extremely heavy. That is true. However, even now we are experiencing a no-show factor of between 10 per cent and 15 per cent, which indicates that passengers have either been unable to contact our reservations to cancel their seats or are double-booking on other carriers," Brumit added.

The TWA official urged that persons who have tickets and are unable to reach TWA's reservations office to "come to the airport. Chances are we'll be able to get you where you're going."

Additionally, TWA recommended that in view of heavy auto traffic, people leave home earlier than ordinarily, allowing plenty of time for delay, have a friend or relative take them to their flight or utilize the limousine bus services.

Brumit added, "We are geared to handle the airport rush. We'll do all we possibly can to assist the traveler but we cannot help until they come to us."

N.L. — No load (sales charge)

Auto production goes down again

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic auto output in 1975 fell to its second-lowest level in 14 years, according to industry figures.

The auto companies ended production for 1975 on Tuesday since they shut down during the holidays, and the trade journal Automotive News estimated car production for the year at 6,725,682, down 8 per cent from the depressed 1974 volume of 7,309,763.

The output level was off 30 per cent from the record 9,667,118 cars the industry built in 1973.

Meanwhile, the big four auto companies — General Motors Corp. Chrysler Corp., Ford Motor Co. and American Motors Corp. — will begin the new year with worker layoffs at their higest levels in more than three months. The industry also will have more plants shut to reduce inventory than at any time since last March.

Layoffs on Jan. 5 will affect 92,725 of 701,000 workers, up from 84,800 through Tuesday.

Despite the scheduled plant closings, the industry finished 1975 and is beginning 1976 on a much stronger note than a year ago, when recession and high price increases caused the worst slump since the Great Depression.

The companies shut down at the end of work shifts Tuesday until Jan. 5 under contracts with the United Auto Workers.

Automotive News said 1975 car output was the lowest since 1970, when a lengthy strike against giant General Motors held output that year to 6,550,077. Excluding 1970, the year's output was the lowest since 1961, when 5,543,000 cars were assembled.

Truck production also slumped sharply in 1975, with output estimated at 2,251,551 units, off 18 per cent from 2,742,502 last year and down 24 per cent from the record 2,980,000 built in 1973.

Total layoffs the week of Jan. 5 will be the highest since the week of Sept. 22, when 102,000 workers were on furlough. But the labor picture will be substantially brighter than the first week of 1975, when dozens of plants were shut and 280,000 workers were on layoff.

Chrysler will shut four of its six car plants and its conventional truck line the week of Jan. 5, idling 16,900 workers. Ford is closing its Louisville, Ky., truck plant, idling 3,525. AMC is halting Pacer production, laying off 3,000 workers at Kenosha, Wis. GM is shutting its Southgate, Calif., plant in preparation for a changeover to production of the mini Chevrolet Chevette, idling 2,500.

Even with the early-month shutdowns, January output is expected to run at a rate of 33,500 cars a day for a monthly total of 676,000 in 20 working days. That would be a 53 per cent increase over the 441,000 cars built in January 1975.

Industry analysts say the companies will continue to keep inventories low by shutting down plants. Company executives say they plan to build cars only at the rate they sell them.

A year ago, the companies were producing in anticipation of rising sales. Sales dropped off instead, and the companies made massive production cutbacks, laying off 40 per cent of the workforce.

Paper profits.
For kids.

Here's a new way for kids to clean up. In more ways than one.

The newspaper game. The object is to collect as much old newspaper as they can from neighbors. No magazines—just newspapers.

In no time they can gather enough bundles to make it worthwhile to sell to us. And earn enough to keep them in pocket money for weeks.

Grownups can play too. In fact, a grownup should drive the papers over to our paper recycling center (a small price for encouraging juvenile industry).

We're open Monday thru Friday, 7:00 AM-5:00 PM.
Saturday 7:00 AM-1:00 PM.

Warning to mothers: The newspaper game stimulates appetites. Put extra food on the table.

Ontario council race grows to 13 hopefuls

3 vacancies up for March vote

Ontario voters will have a wide choice of candidates when they select three persons to serve on the City Council next March 2.

Thirteen candidates had filed their candidacy papers by 8:30 a.m. today, with still more expected.

City officials reported issuing nomination papers to 21 persons. The candidates have until 5 p.m. today to file them.

Candidates seeking the four year terms include the three incumbents, Mrs. Faye Myers Dastrup of 761 W. Hawthorne St., Gustavo Ramos Jr., 1065 E. J St., and Marie H. Sharp, 1023 E. Sixth St.

Another candidate is Homer F. Briggs who retired three years ago as superintendent of the Ontario-Montclair School District. Briggs resides at 1424 W. Philadelphia St.

Others seeking election are Malcolm S. Osmonson, 817 W. I St., an insurance salesman; Beecher Medlin, 1347 W. Princeton St., a service station dealer; Antohony Rizzo, 1368 W. Rosewood Court, electrical foreman; John Hahn, 326 E. C St., maintenance worker, Michael L. Holmes, 518 E. Fifth St., project management; L. Harlan Lee, 2139 E. Fourth St., purchasing manager; Lee Bidwell, 2139 E. Fourth St., restaurant owner; Gordon L. Adams, 958 N. Allyn Ave., program analyst; and Roger A. Skogman, 928 N. Lake Ave., compensation analyst.

Regarding Skogman's candidacy, officials reported his nomination paper failed to have an adequate number of registered voters when checked at the county registrar's office.

To qualify for election, candidates must obtain the signatures of three registered voters. The three candidates receiving the highest number of votes during the election will win the council seats.

Should all 21 nomination papers be returned today, this would set a city record for the most candidates seeking election to the City Council. The previous high was 1972 when 16 candidates vied for these positions.

Voters will also select on March 2 a city clerk and a city treasurer. Only Mrs. DeLoris E. Arterburn, the incumbent, had filed for the city clerk's position.

Two persons, however, are seeking election as city treasurer. They are Viola E. Antwiler, the incumbent, and Martin P. Roach, 325 E. G St., a businessman.

THE GOLDEN VISIT

Scubbie Mills, 86, an honorary volunteer with the La Verne Fire Department, prepares for Santa's 50th annual trip to the city Thursday. Mills has never missed a Christmas trip.

Defendants in victim's home, witness says

A witness testifying in the preliminary hearing for two Ontario men accused of killing an Ontario drug counselor placed the defendants at the victim's home the day of the slaying.

The defendants, Samuel William Jones, 29, of 310 E. Nevada St., and Francis Marion Anthony, 36, of 207 E. Maitland St., Ontario, were arrested on murder charges a few hours after Ontario drug counselor Raymond Meras of 116 E. Sunkist St. was found dead in his home on Nov. 26.

On Monday, Furman White testified that he was with the defendants Nov. 25 when they went to Mr. Meras' home. He said that he and the defendants were offered a drink of wine by Meras and invited inside. He said he did not go in, but Jones and Anthony did.

Witness Mrs. Helen Robles, who lived next door to the home rented by Meras, testified before West Valley Municipal Court Judge David Merriam that in the afternoon of Nov. 25 she saw two male Negroes climb over the fence into the Meras yard and enter the house.

She said one of the men was carrying a brown paper sack, which seemed unusual to her. She said that later on Nov. 25 she saw three male Negroes go into the house with Mr. Meras.

According to police woman Katie Zbinden, Mr. Meras was found dead in his home the next day (Nov. 26). She said at the home she noticed that there was a large amount of blood on the floor next to the couch where the body of Mr. Meras lay. She observed more blood splotches on the wall and floor along with pieces if splintered wood. She added that there appeared to be bloody footprints leading from the couch to the rear door of the home.

San Bernardino County pathologist Ronald Rivers testified that he performed two separate autopsies on Mr. Meras' body. In the first autopsy performed on Nov. 26 he said he determined that Mr. Meras had died of Hemorrhage of the brain tissues possibly caused by a sharp object that penetrated the skull several times. In the second autopsy he said he found a small caliber bullet lodged in Mr. Meras' chin, that had entered the skull at a downward angle. Dr. Rivers added that Mr. Meras died anywhere from eight hours to 72 hours before his body was discovered.

George Navarro, who described himself as a life-long friend of Mr. Meras, testified that he had driven Mr. Meras to the bank on Nov. 24 and co-signed Meras' $300 city payroll check so he could cash it. Meras worked as a drug counselor at the former Chicano House mini-city hall and the Atzlan Center. Police believe that robbery was the motive for Mr. Meras' death.

Mentioned by witnesses on the stand were a gun owned by an Ontario woman that reportedly turned up missing, and a similar gun seen in the possession of defendant Jones prior to Mr. Meras death.

The preliminary hearing was recessed today, but will resume on Friday.

Santa gets fire escort in La Verne

Santa Claus will make his "golden ride" to La Verne Christmas morning on a sleigh accompanied by four fire trucks.

It will be the 50th consecutive Christmas ride under the auspices of the La Verne Fire Department, and will feature Hubert "Scubbie" Mills, 86, a voluntary fireman who has never missed a ride.

Santa will come into town at 8 a.m. Thursday and with 35 firemen serving as his helpers, will distribute 6,200 bags of candy, nuts and apples.

"We'll cover every part of the city," Chief Robert Lapp promised. "We hope we'll not miss one single child."

He said the job has been getting bigger every year because of the city's growth. Fifty years ago, when the first ride was held only a handful of homes were located in the city.

Firemen will get up at 5 a.m. Christmas morning to prepare for the 8 a.m. arrival. Lapp said many fire fighters will be giving up time with their families to participate in the ride.

HOLIDAY WINNER

R. C. Kubly of 4367 Palo Verde Ave. in Montclair won first place in the yard decoration division of the Montclair Vista Women's Club 16th annual outdoor Christmas decorating contest. Other first place winners were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bevilaqua of 4660 Moreno St. for best religious theme and Mr. and Mrs. Art Murray of 4395 Benito St. for best traditional theme. Judges were Dorothy Paul, Judy Wolf, Sandra Stevenson and Mary Burk.

Monsivais enters Chino council race

Louis Monsivais, a general building contractor, is the fourth person to declare his candidacy for a seat on the Chino City Council in the March election.

Monsivais, 49, of 13011 Fifth St., has taken out nomination papers for the seat being vacated by Edward Lynch. Others who have announced candidacies are Pete Garcia and Russell Folds, both Chino planning commissioners, and Richard Marlo, an automotive repairman.

Monsivais has been active in the Chino Community Action Council and received an award from the organization for his work on the Neighborhood Community Center.

On his candidacy, Monsivais said, "I like people, and some people are not happy because there are a lot of problems in the community. The reason for the problems is they don't have the right leadership. This is what inspired me to run and to see if the problems can be alleviated."

He emphasizes that the Community Action Council has helped to hold down gang violence in the city by opening the community center in the old GI Cafe.

Monsivais has lived in Chino for 20 years and operates his own contracting business with his wife Helen.

Paper recycling market improves

Community groups wishing to begin newspaper salvaging drives may contact Mike Macardican of Recycling Resources, 1460 W. Second St., Pomona, at 622-2076.

Macardican said newspaper recycling is rebounding and "the market for used newspapers has definitely reopened."

Most newspapers purchased by Recycling Resources are recycled into newsprint by the Garden State Paper Co. in Pomona.

Crash injures Ontario youth

A 17-year-old Ontario youth was injured early this morning when his car, eastbound on Flora Street, veered right and crashed into the rear-end of a parked stake-platform truck in Ontario.

David Anthony Melendrez, 17, of 1266 W. B St., Ontario, was being treated for face and neck lacerations at Kaiser Fontana Hospital.

Police said the impact of the collision pushed the truck 45 feet. Officers believe that the youth may have fallen asleep at the wheel of his vehicle.

Pool employes receive 20% pay increase in Claremont

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night, meeting before an empty house, granted 20 per cent pay raises effective Jan. 1 to parttime employes at the El Roble swimming pool.

Not a single resident was in the audience as the council held its last regular meeting of the year.

The city's Recreation Department had recommended a 33 per cent across-the-board increase to Warren H. Shafer, assistant to the city manager, but Shafer said he felt that a 20 per cent hike was sufficient to place Claremont at the average pay scale with the cities normally compared with Claremont.

"Since these positions must be filled by a limited amount of trained and qualified candidates, it is important that our pay rates be competitive," Shafer said.

The raises apply to the pool manager, assistant pool manager, instructors and lifeguards.

In other matters, the council went along with a recommendation to reject both construction bids for Yale Avenue planters and wheelchair ramps in the general Village area because they are too high.

Director of Public Works Paul E. Cook said that the low bid of $32,792 submitted by Crowell & Larson of Baldwin Park is about 50 per cent higher than the engineer's estimate.

The other bid of $37,482.85 was submitted by Sully Miller, Long Beach.

Cook said he feels that the city can receive lower prices if it readvertises because prospective bidders will have more time to prepare bids and bonds than the city originally gave them.

Cook said that the city could award a contract for the project on Jan. 13.

The city Parks Department will spend about $11,000 to install landscaping, irrigation lines and street furniture on Yale Avenue after the planters are constructed.

Wheelchair ramps will be built on Harvard and Yale avenues, between First and Fourth streets, and at Indian Hill Boulevard and Bonita Avenue.

In another matter, the council accepted the bid of Pipeway Irrigation, Inc. of San Diego for $9,834.64 for irrigation equipment for Higginbotham Park.

Thirteen bids in all were received by the city. The two lowest bids were unacceptable.

The council authorized the staff to advertise for bids for grading at Higginbotham Park. Cost estimate of the project is $25,000, financed with state park bond funds.

Williams bidding for Walnut council post

Paul Williams, a member of the Parks and Recreation Commission, is a candidate for the Walnut City Council.

Having heard a prediction that the population of Walnut will increase from the present 7,000 to 20,000 or 25,000 in the next five or six years, he believes growth should be controlled.

"You can't stop progress and I think it is a good thing, but I think it should be controlled right now."

Williams moved to Walnut 10 years ago. He and his wife have two children and Williams is active in youth work.

Freeway construction since he moved to Walnut reduces the time it takes him to get to work as distribution center supervisor for Sazio's Market in the City of Industry, the candidate said. It also makes Walnut convenient to Los Angeles, a factor in growth, he said.

"As houses are built, people move right in," said Williams. "It must be because they like Walnut."

But he likes the city's rolling hills and wants to retain them.

He believes that a civic center now being talked about is unnecessary and that present facilities are adequate.

Youth shot in Pomona

A young Pomona man was shot Tuesday night as he and several companions were walking across a field at Rebecca Avenue and Fernleaf Street, police reported.

The victim, Stephen Gardner, 21, was wounded as he and the others fled. The bullet, probably a .22-caliber, struck him in the back, hit a lung and lodged in his shoulder. He was treated first at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred later to County-USC Medical Center where his condition today was termed fair. He suffered a partial collapse of one lung, authorities said.

Police reported that Gardner and his companions were crossing the field when they met another group of youths crossing toward them. When the groups met, one youth in the second group pulled a revolver and fired at the victim and his scattering companions. One shot struck Gardner and two others apparently hit nothing.

Reward offered

In SAN DIMAS, Charles Hutchins, 344 Kennedy Road, has offered a reward of $200 for either the return of items stolen from his garage Dec. 21 or for information leading to the arrest of the thief.

Hutchins said that someone stole a top for a 1956 Ford Thunderbird, fender skirts to the car plus an air compressor and an arc welder. He valued the loss at $1,000.

Claremont man's trial is recessed

The trial of a Claremont man charged with two others in San Jose with murder, conspiracy to commit murder and robbery, was recessed Tuesday for the holiday season.

The defendant is James T. Elliott, 28, who with Charles James Thomas, 46 of Chino, and Daniel Thompson, 28, of Santa Clara, was arrested and charged in the slaying and robbery Dec. 1, 1974, of Los Angeles jeweler Benjamin E. Rudman, 61. Rudman's body was found that day in the trunk of his car parked at the San Jose Airport. Missing from the car was $100,000 in jewelry.

Both Elliott and Thompson are on trial before a jury in the courtroom of San Jose Superior Court Judge Peter Amello. The third man's case was severed from Elliott's and Thompson's because of a possible conflict of interests among defense attorneys. Thompson's trial will follow the current trial. All three men are being held without bail.

The pair's trial began Nov. 24 and is about at midpoint, according to the prosecutor, Deputy Dist. Atty. Clayton Haupert. It will resume Jan. 5.

Elliott was arrested April 16 at his Claremont home and taken to San Jose for trial.

Rudman was shot three times by the persons who robbed him. Police believe his body had been in the car trunk several days before it was discovered.

3 at hospital receive pins

Three service pins were awarded at Park Avenue Hospital's annual Christmas party for employes and their families.

Mrs. Mary Ogg, a registered nurse, received a five-year pin, and 10-year pins were presented to Mrs. Edna Nichols, head of medical records, and Mrs. Mary Toste of the dietary department. The presentations were made by Calvin Good, hospital administrator.

One hundred seventy-five attended the event at Los Serranos Country Club. Mrs. Lee Ann Deyo was chairman of the event, and Frank Carr was master of ceremonies.

Extension granted

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A magistrate has extended through Dec. 29 a search warrant authorizing the FBI to dig up a dump where mob victims, including former Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa, may be buried.

Tax shelters not all bad

Few questions facing the American people today are more vital, more debated — and more confusing — than the question of oil.

Barely two years after the United States decided to make itself independent of foreign oil, we find ourselves more dependent than ever.

Americans currently consume 17 millions of barrels of oil each day and produce less than 10 million. According to one study, even if there is only a modest 2.5 per cent annual increase in oil consumption over the next decade, by 1985 we will be consuming 23 million barrels a day, while our presently known domestic reserves will be supplying less than 5 million barrels.

Yet it is the vogue to attack the petroleum industry, especially in Congress, where some members seem determined not only to roll back the price of oil being produced today but to abolish the investment incentives that are needed if the industry is to find and develop the oil the nation will need tomorrow.

Few people will shed a tear over the problems of Exxon, Gulf, Shell and the like. The fact is, however, that drilling by the nation's 4,000 small, independent oil companies accounts for 80 per cent of all on-shore oil discoveries, and these companies are perhpas even more dependent than the giants of the industry on investment capital from private individuals.

Not many Americans, of course, can afford to take a "bath" in a dry hole to the tune of $5,000 or $10,000, the usual investments in one well these days. But apparently, despite the recession and its lingering after effects, there are still many individuals in the U.S. with a minimum net worth of $200,000 who can.

This is the criterion required by ENI Corporation, the nation's largest brokerage house specializing in tax-related investment opportunities for high-income individuals and corporations — in short, tax shelters. ENI is the largest supplier of funds to the independent oil industry.

"It is important to recognize the vital role played by the independent oil companies and to give them the kind of encouragement necessary to continue drilling on-shore wells," ENI president Joseph L. Schocken recently told a meeting of faculty and students at the Harvard Business School.

Schocken agrees that a "tough and comprehensive" tax reform bill is badly needed. Certain abuses are permitted within the tax code which severely undermine the morale of other taxpayers.

There are, for example, situations whereby an investor can make an investment in a program and have a profit the instant he writes the check merely from the tax savings he realizes. Such possibilities are flagrant abuses of the tax code and ought to be curbed.

At the same time, he points out, tax shelters can serve as a means of channeling needed capital to areas of national priority. Construction of low-income housing, as well as the further development of domestic petroleum resources, are very much needed national goals, and the flow of investor capital to those areas is significantly enhanced by tax benefits.

Objectives such as these can be retained while putting together a tax reform bill designed to eliminate any current abuses, Schocken believes.

Unquestionably, fortunes are being made in oil. But fortunes are also being lost in oil. If the time ever comes when investors no longer have the tax-shelter cushion to encourage them to take the gamble, we could all end up losing our shirts to the Arabs.

Think on these things

One of the best bits of advice in the sensitive area of human relationships came from an elderly man to his young friend:

"Refuse to be put on the defensive. If something hurts, consider whether it is pain or pride. You can't relax in your work if you have to guard the door all the time, and you can't hold someone's feet to the fire without singeing your own fingers. Maybe someone you're trying to stand off really is your friend, and maybe a true friend.

"It is easy to build up a lot of foolish notions about what other people think and then try to defend oneself against them. When we play to our own true natures, and pay attention to our own business and we are still attacked from the outside, then you can stand your ground. If the other person still wants to make a fool of himself, then let him. That is his problem."

About this-that

The cloud of smoke and dust from the April 1, 1963 eruption of Mt. Trident in Alaska's Valley of 10,000 Smokes was visible 100 miles away.

The calendar of South America's ancient Inca Indians was divided into 12 months, each having three weeks of varying length from nine to 11 days.

Ford told Teng next China ruler

WASHINGTON — The aging Mao Tse-tung confided to President Ford in Peking December 2 that China's next ruler will be Teng Hsiao-ping, who only a decade ago was purged from power.

Apparently, this settles a question that has been debated for months in chancelleries around the world.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger passed the word in confidence to Republican leaders the other day at a secret White House meeting. We have obtained the confidential minutes.

"Mao made clear to President Ford that Teng is the man," the minutes quote Kissinger as saying.

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., the assistant Senate Republican leader, wanted to know where this left ailing Premier Chou En-lai.

"He seems entirely out of it," said Kissinger.

President Ford confirmed that Teng was "very much in charge." The President also reported that he was surprised by Chairman Mao's vigor. He will be 82 the day after Christmas.

"I found Chairman Mao much stronger physically than I anticipated," said Ford, then added: "And alert."

During the Chinese cultural revolution of the mid 1960s, Teng was deposed and humiliated by the Communist party he had helped found more than 40 years earlier. For seven years, he remained in disgrace.

But in 1973, Teng was restored to power, and his comeback has been dramatic. He is now the party's senior vice chairman and heir apparent, although he is in his 70s.

Kissinger also confided to the GOP leaders that the language of his public statement in Peking had been requested by the Chinese. The requested wording was that the United States and Communist China have "certain parallel interests."

He predicted that the two powers will be able to work together as long as the U.S. maintains its strength. "We have been brought together," he said "by a common interest and concern about the USSR and its power."

The two main obstacles to Chinese-American friendship, Kissinger indicated, were our support of Taiwan and South Korea. "Whatever is worked out between Taiwan the PRC (Peoples Republic of China) must be on peaceful lines," he said, "moving toward normalization."

All the Chinese said about South Korea, Kissinger reported, was that "you know our position."

In Indonesia and the Philippines, he continued, "we made clear we have an Asian policy, not merely a Chinese policy."

The President reported that Indonesia "was most anxious to have the U.S. retain an active role in the Pacific" and that the Philippines' President Ferdinand Marcos is "concerned about the economic situation." Ford commented that Marcos "has strengthened the economy" in the Philippines.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., asked about Thailand. Kissinger replied that the U.S. is withdrawing all but a "housekeeping" detachment of troops.

XEROX'S LAST STAND: Before Congress closed for Christmas, the copying kings from Xerox put up a last stand on Capitol Hill to keep their machines in post office lobbies around the country.

Two House subcommittees had recommended that the machines be removed by the end of the year. Small businessmen have complained that the choice locations give Xerox an unfair advantage.

Other retailing, once sanctioned in postal lobbies, was also ordered out. Those who lost their locations left quietly.

But not Xerox. With about $3 million a year at stake, the copying kings didn't intend to vacate the postal lobbies without a battle.

They brought in a special consultant, named Ben Brown to win friends and influence people on Capitol Hill. But he won enemies and alienated people instead. He tried to discredit the House recommendation by spreading hallway gossip about staffers and postal officials.

This backfired on Xerox, which hastily dumped Brown and brought in a high-priced lobbyist, Claude Desautels, in his place. Desautels is a smoothy, who stroked congressional fur and purred about the need for new hearings.

After fending off Xerox for months, one subcommittee chairman, Rep. James Hanley, D-N.Y., has finally agreed to poll his members next session to determine whether new hearings are desired.

Footnote: A Xerox spokesman acknowledged that the company was fighting to keep its machines in postal lobbies. He said the report about Brown didn't "deserve comment" Brown couldn't be reached.

CHRISTMAS BONUSES: The House Intelligence Committee is scheduled to go out of business next month. Yet 19 staff members have been granted last-minute pay raises, totaling $32,000 on an annual basis. The unwritten rule of government is never to turn any money back into the Treasury.

What people say

"What I like about photography is it's just the art of stopping time., it's finally dealing with time, it's trying to grab moment and fixing them which is what we're all after. It's sort of defying death."
—Film director Louis Malle when asked if photography were art.

"Some recent (college) graduates have chosen to earn their living outside the upwardly mobile occupations. They are deliberately investing a smaller part of themselves in their jobs in order to put their main energies into a number of things that happen to appeal to them."
—Katharine Ericson, Alumnae director at Radcliffe college, on college graduates increasingly entering occupations unrelated to the subject of study.

"The system doesn't want justice. It wants convictions. That's why, given enough money, I can buy justice. I can win any case in this country, given enough money. I'm going to tell the truth. You must destroy the charade, the illusion of justice."
—Jerry Paul, the North Carolina lawyer who won acquittal for Joan Little.

"Writers, artists, actors, teachers and scholars are under such monstrous ideological pressure that one wonders why art and the humanities have not altogether vanished from our country."
—Nobel prize winner and Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov commenting on oppression against Russia's creative elements.

Just in jest

Even though Thomas Wolfe assured us, "You Can't Go Home Again," there are still times when I wish I could. What a grand and glorious experience it would be if once again I were able to regain that feeling of awe and wonderment with which I was overcome in the days of my youth as I gazed at the technological marvels of that era — the horse cars, the wind-up phonographs, the galvanized sheet metal bathtubs and the pull chain toilets.

But earlier day technological marvels aren't all that would make such a backward journey intriguingly worthwhile. Along with the awe and the wonderment they created, there might even be other marvelous re-experiences — those never to be forgotten moments when a young lad stood blushing and tongue-tied in the presence of a freckled, beribboned little Gwendoline or Penelope, Elvira or Jemima and tried to give the impression that girls didn't really amount to much anyway.

—But enough of idle daydreaming! What, I wonder, ever became of such delightful names as Gwendoline, Jemima and all the rest?

Wally's perennial Christmas card

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — As I remember it Wally was Mongoloid: a stubby, homely fellow with an intellectual capacity wedged somewhere between slight and faint. I did not know his age, nor for that matter much else of his private person save the observation he was a desolate creature. I was a schoolboy in Everett, Wash. Wally was the slack jawed shadow, forever in need of a bath, who for want of purpose attached himself to my crowd.

He was never formally accepted as a companion, understand. He was just there, desperately hanging about, a nuisance not easily dismissed. In some ways he had a usefulness, I suppose, to go buy the hamburgers for instance, therefore my bunch tolerated him in the spirit of resignation, as a macabre inevitability.

Macabre? This was Wally's singular fascination, rooted as much in his appearance as in his difference. His eyes were sunken and dark, his hair unbrushed, his teeth too. He wore a heavy pea jacket, and strapped overalls. In a cruel way, this was a part of his use to my friends and I, the worse among us being not nearly so ugly. I recall when the girls in our gang set out to prove something among themselves, one of them occasionally was dispatched on a dare to kiss Wally, a deplorable duty done with much public demonstration and yet I suspect with Freudian impressions that served the need in us all.

Wally did not attend our school, nor perhaps any school, there being at the time little public understanding of, or compassion for, the retarded. Each recess he was there, however, each noon hour and each assembly. For a time he even came to the dances, wearing his tennis shoes, but gave this up in confusion after being refused entry on one occasion by a chaperone who said he'd been drinking wine. The accusation was a ruse, unfortunately. If the children of my town had reservations about Wally, the adults had outright subjectivity.

Still, Wally hung on, there being no alternative to his second-class citizenship but total seclusion. Better berated than isolated. Once when he was walking behind the girls' gymnasium, the instructor called police with a "peeper" complaint, and Wally was taken away. Once when he spent an afternoon picking up litter from the school grounds, the custodian chewed on him for "interfering" and excluded him from the campus for a month. Even chased away, though, even wronged and mistreated, Wally would return and hang on as before.

Only one time do I remember him alienated by the forces against him, during a Christmas, shortly before the school vacation. Wally showed up with a sprig of evergreen on his jacket, and with a large Christmas card in his hands. Without being asked, he opened the card for everyone he met, explaining that he'd received it in the mail, pointing out its quiet beauty and reverence of thought. But as he often did when sensing he could add input to the activity, he stretched a small matter into irritating proportions. He pushed too hard, he became a pest. He thus had to be, deserved to be, reproached.

One of the girls did it. Gathering a crowd, she called Wally over and asked for his card. He gladly complied, explaining again that he'd just gotten it through the mail, and running his fingers over the colors. She held it up, giggling what we all knew but wouldn't say, that the card was the same one Wally had carried around the previous Christmas, and the one before that, and going back God knows how many years. He had bought it himself, no doubt, and given it to himself, but told the world it was the gift of a friend.

There was nervous laughter. Wally began to sob. For a moment I thought he might strike out, there were in fact those of us who wished he would have struck out. But he just wept, quietly, turning his face. After a time the crowd, now uncomfortable, wandered away. So did Wally, not to return until after the holidays, and then not so frequently as before perhaps, though as ever he had but little choice.

He died some years later, I'm told, in an accident occurring close to another Christmas, with no one even then paying much notice.

Picture ultra brite for T-shirt fancier

I am writing about an order I sent to an Ultra Brite T-Shirt address in New Jersey over three months ago.

Along with the required carton ends of the tooth paste, I sent a check for $6 for three Love-life T-shirts. I never received them.

Less than a month later I received a form letter stating that if I did not get my shirts within a week from the time the letter arrived, I should re-order on the back of the letter. I did so but have had no response at all since then — and no T-shirts.

Maybe you can help me get either my $6 cash refund or the three T-shirts. I really don't care which.

I wonder how many people lose their money on such mail orders because they lack time, effort and money to complain.

I read your column as often as it is in the Progress Bulletin and I wish it were in the paper every day. Keep up the good work.

Although this complaint is only one of the insignificant ones, it's the principle of the practice of negligence by mail order companies that perturbs me. — R.A.K., Pomona

Your T-shirts arrived exactly a week after we wrote to the Ultra Brite address, in time to give them away for Christmas if you have lost interest in wearing them.

Dick Brown, customer service representative for Sportex, apparently the retailer for the T-shirts, sent us a note that they had been mailed in October. That would mean they were on the road nearly two months.

I am retired and have come to Chino from Philadelphia to live with my daughter.

Since my arrival here I have been able to get the 80 per cent compensation of my doctor and prescription bills which comes from Medi-Care, but not the 20 per cent that is due me from the Pennsylvania Blue Shield plan.

I am a diabetic and have a heart condition which makes it necessary to go to the doctor at least once a month.

Also, I have a foot problem that requires care by a podiatrist.

I don't have any papers to send. They have all been thrown out. — R.U., Chino Claims for the type of services you describe fall under Medi-Care Part B.

Mrs. Lorraine Seifried, acting supervisor of Blue Shield subscriber relations in Philadelphia, explained that the Pennsylvania Blue Shield Plan pays the 20 per cent balance for its non-group 65 Special (people over 65) subscribers. However, the $60 Medi-Care deductible for each calendar year would not be covered by Blue Shield.

Payment of doctor fees applied to Medi-Care Part B deductibles are the responsibility of the subscriber. That's you.

Whenever a Medi-Care Part B claim is processed, a statement called an explanation of benefits notice is sent to the beneficiary — you.

You may use either the original or photostatic copies of the explanation of benefits notices for consideration of your claim.

She sent more information to help you file your claims and sent a copy to you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Relax. Enjoy yourself today. Though some worldly matters may clamor for attention, set them aside. They can be attended to later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your first responsibility is to your family today. Once they're happy, take care of being a jolly good fellow with others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This will be a fun day for you socially. However, try not to indulge too heavily in all the goodies. Don't try to cram the whole season into one day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take time to enjoy yourself today. Fretting over whether the family is having a good time will diminish your fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Christmas comes once a year, so enjoy, enjoy. The workaday world will still be there tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.22) You could be caught up in the spirit of the season and make an overly generous return for a small favor. Let reason rule emotion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Before you get caught up in the activities of this busy day, fulfill your obligations to one who is older. Then you can be carefree.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) If you happen to receive an extremely large gift today, be tactful in talking about it to those who may not be as fortunate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be happier today with older people who appreciate the day for what it is, rather than with those preoccupied with their ambitions.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan. 19) Others are apt to treat you more generously than you anticipated today. Don't look for hidden motives. They're doing it because they like you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could displease your mate by making some last-minute changes in what you've decided to do. Keep peace. Stick to what you agreed upon.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March20) Spending the day with those for whom you have deep emotional ties would be the wiser course, but lure of the bright lights may be too much to resist.

Your Birthday, Dec. 25, 1975

You're going to form an important alliance this coming year, probably with someone much older than yourself. This person will be an enormous help to your career.

Ann Landers

Wife a real sensible woman?

Dear Ann Landers: You hear from so many crazy fools I thought you might appreciate a letter from someone who is sane for a change. My story might also make some hysterical woman think twice before she takes extreme measures against a husband who is having a fling.

My wife learned from one of her "friends" that I was seeing a young lady in my office. When confronted, I admitted it and asked for time to get the young woman out of my system. My wife was very sensible and agreed to be patient.

For five months I did my own thing. My wife never asked questions when I phoned to say I wouldn't be home for dinner. She didn't throw a fit when I said I was going away for the weekend.

One day I decided my romance had run its string. I told my wife her mature behavior was most admirable and that I was no longer interested in the other woman. Our marriage is better than ever and no one was hurt. I hope you will print this letter for all wives to read. — Gemini

Dear G.: I have no good-conduct medals for the likes of you, Buster. Just because your wife didn't stick her head in the oven doesn't mean she wasn't deeply hurt.

Don't deceive yourself into believing your affair improved your marriage. Just consider yourself lucky your alley-catting didn't destroy it.

Dear Ann Landers: Please excuse the looks of this letter but my wife and I are in a state of shock. Yesterday our daughter came home from college for the weekend. To our amazement she had a butterfly tattooed on one leg and a rose tattooed on the other. We didn't say anything, mainly because we didn't know WHAT to say. Thankfully her dresses and pants will cover the tattooing but her younger brother is very much impressed.

Should we say anything to her? What should we tell our son in case he's considering doing the same? Mary is 18 and Paul is 16. — Upset A Plenty

Dear Up: Say nothing to your daughter. She isn't interested in your opinion or she'd have asked before having herself decorated like a circus freak.

If your son wants to have himself tattooed suggest that he think about it until he's out of high school. Nine out of ten people who have gone in for tattooing say they were drunk (or foolish) and are sorry they did it. (P.S. Tattoos can be removed, but it's a tedious and expensive procedure.)

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my alcoholic father drove home from a party — bombed out of his mind. It's a miracle he made it.

I realize some people can enjoy liquor and not abuse it, but others must drink until they get drunk. My dad is one of those.

I don't know how a host and hostess can permit a friend who is knee-walking drunk to drive himself home.

Please print my letter and ask every host to insist that intoxicated guests be driven home by someone who is sober — or call a taxi — or drive them himself. — Luck Can Last Only So Long

Dear Luck: Thank you for a letter millions of people will identify with. The saddest thing about drunk drivers is that too often they hit another car and take three or four innocent people with them.

Joe Firman

Not a creature was stirring...

Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good night.

Good night! Time to start my Christmas shopping. Hope the drugstore stays open late.

For most people, Christmas Eve is a time of reminiscence, a time of recalling, of remembering Christmases past, some good, some not so hot, mostly freighted with nostalgia and sentimentality. The sound of "O, Holy Night" turns us to jelly.

Remember the time the kids were going to stay up all night and see Santa Claus, and they all fell asleep on the staircase? Remember when your folks spent Christmas with us, and Grandma Sarah got swacked on the egg nog? Remember when I blew out all the lights on the block when I hitched up that electric train for Junior?

Christmas Eve for many fathers is painting doll houses in the cellar, assembling swing-slide sets on the patio, putting together the Eezy-Jiffo Giant Robot, or walking through the streets looking for a store that sells Rams T-shirts. Christmas Eve has driven more strong men to strong liquor than women have.

Christmas Eve is when most of the lights on the tree go out; when you remember you forgot candy canes; when you can't remember where you hid the skateboard; when you suddenly remember you haven't got anything for Aunt Mable who will arrive at dawn, laden with presents.

The livingroom is awash with goodies for Christmas stockings, with unwrapped presents, with wrapping paper, ribbon and Scotch tape, with broken tree ornaments and empty egg nog cups. Who is this book for? Did you get anything for Cousin Tim? What did you do with the checks Grandpa sent for the children? Checks? Children? Er . . .

Christmas Eve for young marrieds is a blast. They've bought each other water skis and see-through nighties, and they are off around town to pop in on this friend and that, cadging drinks off harrassed parents trying to assemble model planes or finish knitting little Lori's dolly clothes. They don't make any friends by telling old Eddie that Tab GG ought to go through slot R-2, before he tried to hook the lugs into the brogenslips, or reminding Sally that a complete wardrobe of doll's clothes is on sale at Murchison's department store for only $12.99.

At the other end of the social spectrum are those whose kids are grown and gone. They have mailed off checks to the children and grandchildren, and they settle comfortably by their fireside on Christmas Eve, happily contemplating the table-size Christmas tree and listening to the Henry Mancini yule records on the stereo.

Between the newlyweds and the oldlyweds lies that battleground of parents-with-young-children, for whom Christmas Eve is the zero hour, the night before Waterloo, the Gotterdammerung.

Where are the scissors? Is the paint dry on the rocking chair? Where is the doll's other shoe? Are we out of gift tags? Did you get more rubber cement like I asked you to? Is that one of the kids crying? Rover was sick behind the tree — he ate all those candy canes! Where is the — ? Can you get the — ? Why didn't you — ?

Silent Night, Holy Night, all is calm . . .

Dr. Lamb

How many calories make diet?

DEAR DR. LAMB — How many calories should a normally active person who is on a diet have in one day?

DEAR READER — A "person" covers a lot of territory and there is no one answer. Also what do you mean by normally active? What is normal for your 80-year-old grandmother is a lot different than for a 17-year-old boy who is 6 feet 2 and in good health.

There are two major considerations on the total calories needed a day, the number needed if you stayed in bed quietly, as in a sleeping state all 24 hours (the basal metabolic requirements), and the number needed if you stayed in bed quietly, as in a sleeping state all 24 hours (the basal metabolic requirements), and the number used in your daily activities from brushing your teeth to shoveling snow.

The basal calorie needs are dependent upon your body size, and how much of your body is muscle mass. Thus, at rest a small grandmother without much muscle mass will need far fewer calories than her active 6 foot 2 grandson with a normal muscle mass. That is why it is hard for women with small frames and limited amounts of muscle to restrict their calories enough to really lose fat. The basal calorie needs a day may be less than 1000 calories a day or more than 1800 calories a day depending upon the person.

Obviously the number that must be added to the basal calorie requirements for your physical energy depends on what you really do physically. If you are really active doing things that require lots of energy (calories) most of the day, then you will need more calories, and you can eat more and still successfully lose unwanted fat.

There is another part to your question, which relates to what you need in your diet every day to provide the necessary vitamins and minerals. In general, if you get below 1200 calories a day I think you should certainly be under a doctor's supervision. You can still eat a balanced diet with all the needed vitamins, minerals, and protein if you consume 1200 calories a day. Below that level this becomes almost impossible, and you will need vitamin and mineral supplements.

For those who want to try a balanced diet that is limited to 1200 calories a day send in 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This diet will give you the lists of various foods you need to still have a balanced diet and reduce your calories.

In general, I don't approve of crash diets or any diet that causes you to lose more than two pounds a week, after the first week. The first week really doesn't count because on almost any significant reduction in food intake there will be an initial loss of fluid from the body tissues and emptying of the digestive tract. This weight will return at once when you return to sensible eating.

If you lose more than two pounds a week you may be losing vital muscle mass. That will make your problem worse after you stop the diet than it was before you started it. That's no way to go. You should judge what your calorie intake should be by observing if you are losing weight regularly or not. If you are steadily losing a pound a week that is good enough.

Remember a pound of body fat contains 3500 calories. If your diet provides 500 calories a day less than you need for basal requirements plus activity requirements you will only lose a pound a week. A decrease in 500 calories a day from your usual diet is a significant reduction for most people.

Opening lead — 9 ♠

Usually, the player who uppercuts does so to develop a trick for his partner. On rare occasions he develops a trick for himself.

East cashes two spade tricks and looks around for a third. He isn't going to get it. Can his partner?

South has shown the ace of clubs in the bidding. West might hold the king of clubs, but if he does it isn't going to do him any good. South will be able to discard any losing clubs on dummy's hearts.

That leaves a trump trick as a possibility. East leads a third spade!

South has to follow suit and West ruffs with the nine of trumps. The nine uppercuts dummy. It can only be beaten by the ace and if the ace is played, West's king becomes a winner.

If that third spade had not been led, South would be able to take a simple diamond finesse and make his contract. The uppercut has beaten him.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader says, "Here in Milwaukee none of the better players will open a four-card major suit. I can find no such rule in my limited bridge literature. What is your advice on this?"

Our advice is to bid as the Jacobys bid. We try to avoid opening a four-card major, but would surely open one heart with:

♠ A K 2 ♥ K Q J 9 ♦ 7 6 5 4 ♣ Q 5.

On the other hand we open one club as do practically all good players with:

♠ K 10 8 7 ♥ K 7 6 5 ♦ 4 3 ♣ A K 8.

Tot understands 'under the bed'

A boy of 18 months normally understands the word "now" exactly. But he's usually about two years old before he gets the meaning of "soon." Incidentally, one of the first things a baby comprehends is the phrase "under the bed." But that same youngster may not know what you mean at all when you say "under the chair."

IF YOU DON'T think Mother Nature is cute, consider this. A little fawn is just about devoid of any noticeable scent. But the mama deer with such an offspring emits a far more distinctive odor than usual. That's how she lures away the wolves and killer cats. Pretty tricky.

HOTDOG

A hotdog is not just any old sausage. Purity of its contents are elaborately prescribed by government regulation. No chicken. No fish. That's too bad. Our Chief Prognosticator predicts H. Salt, Esq., and Col. Sanders or their imitators will combine shortly to produce a mongrel sausage of catfish and rooster meat. What will they call it? Not a hotdog, that's outlawed.

NOW THE MEDICAL BOYS say your body temperature, if typical, is at its highest at about 6:30 in the evening. It's lowest, they say, at about 4:30 in the morning Scholars in the past have tried to prove we're brightest when our body temperatures are up, dullest when said temperatures are down. Interesting, if true. It would mean the majority of the population is at its witty best just about suppertime.

COWBOY BOOTS

Note a magazine fiction man writes: "He affected high-heeled boots, like so many cowboys, because he wanted to appear taller." Hogwash! Cowboys wore high-heeled boots to keep their feet from sliding through the stirrups. Over the years those high heels probably saved more lives than the Red Cross.

AM ASKED WHAT proportion of the nation's doctors and lawyers are Jewish. Just about 10 percent of the doctors. That's more than triple the percentage of Jews in the total population. And approximately 17 per cent of the lawyers. That's roughly six times the percentage of Jews in the population at large.

NO DOUBT YOU'VE ridden a roller coaster. Would a glass of water on the floor of the car withstand the ride without spilling? Hardly likely, what? So thought I. On the contrary, that's the simple test the builders give such devices before they open them to the public.

IF ONLY ONE of the parents is left-handed, odds run one to six they'll produce a left-handed child. If neither of the parents is left-handed, chances are one in 16 they'll turn out a left-handed child. Or so say some medical scholars who admit they debate the contention with other medical scholars.

Vitamins are special food substances that are needed to keep us healthy and strong. Vitamins are found in natural foods, such as vegetables and meat.

But vitamins are not food. They do not turn into flesh and bone as foodstuffs do.

Instead, the body uses them in small amounts as tools to control certain body functions and in processes that turn foods into tissue and produce energy.

Different foods contain different kinds of vitamins. Each vitamin has a specific duty to perform.

The human body makes some vitamins, but often in amounts too small to meet its needs.

Others are not made in the body at all, and must be supplied by the foods we eat.

If we don't get enough from our food, we can buy vitamins at the store.

Vitamins are named after the letters of the alphabet — A, B, C, and so on in the order in which they were discovered.

Gallery to stage comedy

Gallery Theater, Ontario, will present Neil Simon's comedy, "Barefoot in the Park," for several weekends starting Jan. 2. The play will be staged at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

The long-running Broadway hit opened in New York in 1963, starring the little-known Robert Redford.

Nedra Volz, local film and television actress, will be featured. Others in the cast are Carol Harmer, Sean Fessler, Gary Hobo, Scott Poindexter and Norm Reick. Mark Shipley directs.

Gallery will present the final performances of the Charles Dickens classic, "A Christmas Carol," at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The Peanut Gallery, youth wing of the theater, stages "The littlest Angel" at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The theater is at C Street and Lemon Avenue. Reservations for all performances can be made at 982-5357.

KATIE ZERBY stars with the Weire Brothers comedy team at the Mayfair Music Hall in Santa Monica through Jan. 4. Reservations can be made at (213) 451-0621.

Stadium comes from the Greek "stadion", the length of the 600-foot-race course at Olympia, site of the ancient athletic games. Later the term was applied to the race and the place it was run.

Met broadcasts start 36th season

NEW YORK (AP) — Early this month, with little fanfare, the longest running radio show under single sponsorship in the United States began its 36th season on the air — Texaco's Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

The Saturday afternoon opera offerings — there are 20 each season — currently are carried by 159 commercial and 124 noncommercial stations, says Harold Hawkey, Texaco's supervisor for the programs.

He says with the exception of outlets in Honolulu, Puerto Rico and Alaska, which are sent tapes of the broadcasts, stations carrying the Met songfests are required by contract to air the show live.

"If they don't carry it live, it's an abrogation of the contract," says Hawkey, adding that each broadcast averages about three hours in length and usually starts at 2 p.m. EST on Saturdays.

Hawkey, who says the number of stations carrying the Met broadcasts hasn't varied much in the past 10 years, said Texaco has offered the broadcasts over its own Saturday network — put together by an outside packager, G.H. Johnston, Inc. — since 1950.

Prior to that, he said, Texaco sponsored the opera series on commercial radio networks, primarily NBC.

The first Met broadcast, a production of "Hansel and Gretel," aired on Christmas Day, 1931. It was presided over by Milton Cross, who announced all but two of the broadcasts until his death early this year at 77.

Hawkey said the broadcasts were sponsored by various companies until 1939, when Texaco began its single sponsorship of the opera series.

Although the company pays the Met for broadcast rights for each show, there've been no commercials during the shows in recent years, he added.

"We can't do that because we have all these noncommercial stations," he said, referring to the public radio stations which by law aren't allowed to broadcast commercial announcements.

"So at the start of the show, we simply say, 'The Texaco Metropolitan Opera broadcast network brings you....' and that's it," Hawkey said.

How much does Texaco pay for the shows? He declined to say, citing a private contractual agreement between the company and the Met. He said that information should come from Metropolitan Opera officials.

A spokesman for the opera said Texaco paid $280,000 to the Met for the right to air 20 productions this season, and also is paying additional fees to Met performers appearing in each broadcast production.

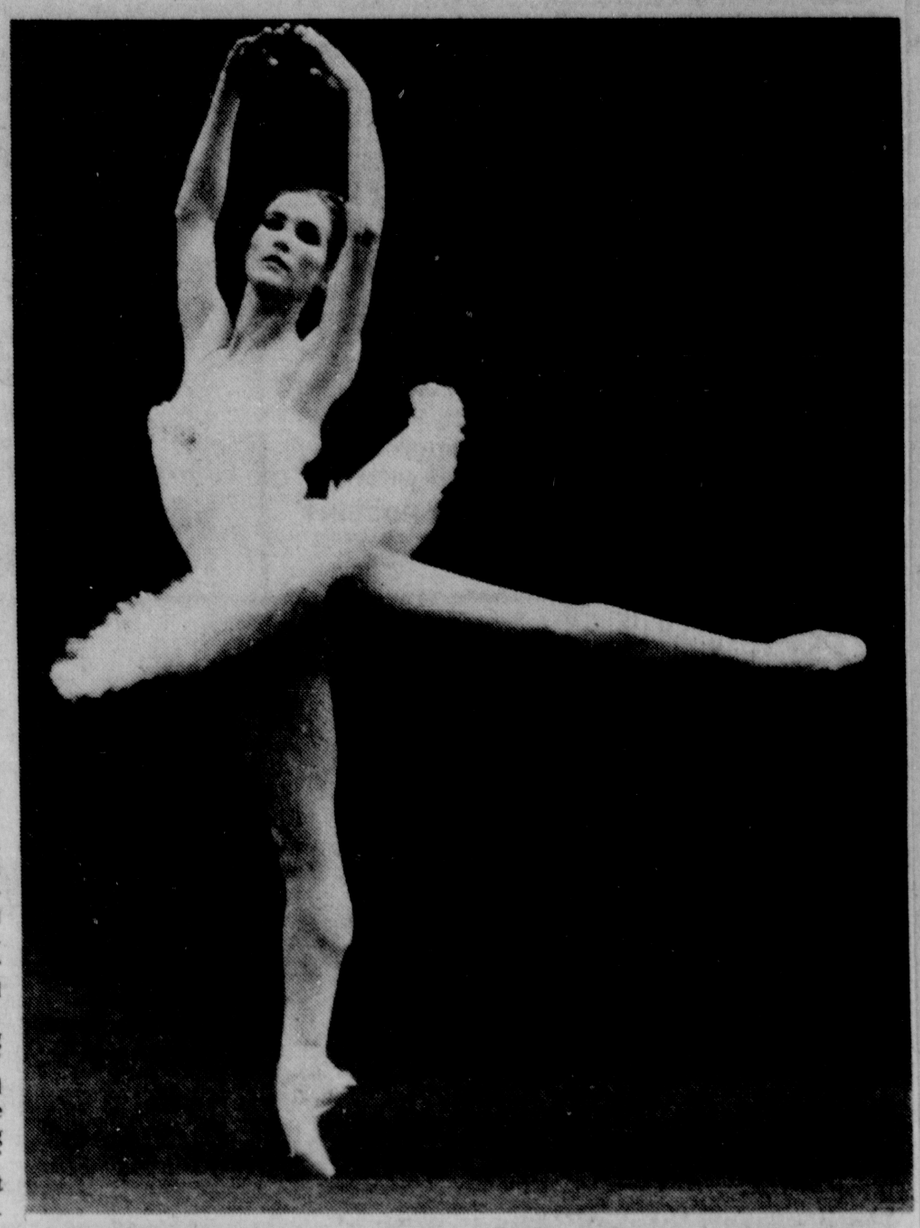

He had no estimate on how much this will amount to by season's end.

Hawkey, asked what Texaco feels it is getting in return for its commercial-less Met broadcasts, said there are two things Texaco seems to be getting for its efforts. One is a good public image.

"We are doing something that is right," he said. "I see all the mail that comes in, and we almost never get anything bad about the broadcasts."

The other thing is that it appears opera can sell gas.

"We have many people, thousands of people each year, who say in their letters, 'I use Texaco because you sponsor the broadcasts,' Hawkey said.

DAINTY DANCER — Lynda Yourth, former soloist with the New York City Ballet, will dance the Sugar Plum Fairy in all five performances of "The Nutcracker" by the San Diego Ballet in Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Tchaikovsky ballet will be staged at 2 p.m. each day and at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

New Wambaugh novel to film

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) —Joseph Wambaugh, the ex-cop who is making a good thing out of writing about cops, has a new one, and "The Choirboys" is headed for the big screen.

In fact, Wambaugh is going to write the screenplay himself. He wasn't happy with the movie made from his first novel, "The New Centurions," nor with the TV film made from his second, "The Blue Knight." So this time he's taking no chances and will write "The Choirboys" himself.

He's still story consultant on the TV series, Police Story, which he created, and will serve in the same capacity on the new series, The Blue Knight, based on his book.

"I imagine," Wambaugh says, "I'll have to fight the same battle on The Blue Knight that I fought on Police Story — attempting to get them to concentrate more on character than on action.

"If they go for action on The Blue Knight," he says, "It will be a failure. If they say, 'Well, there is a show about a cop on the beat now — Joe Forrester — so we have to have more action than they do,' well, then The Blue Knight will be a flop. It's a character show and it could be about any aging man, not just a cop."

Wambaugh says he isn't sure if he has another book on cops in his system. He thinks he may have gotten it all out with "The Choirboys." It's a far different book from his earlier ones — funny, cynical, tough.
